ISSUE INJUNCTION AGAINST CO-OPS

WORLD CONFERENCE NOW ASSURED

90 Day Restraining Orders Are Issued; Contest Is Likely

Warehousemen Ask That "Pool" Officials Be Enjoined From Issuing Further Warrants —Sweeping Allegations Made in Petition's Filed by Warehouse Corporation and Piedmont Warehouse.

Judge D. Price Withers of the Danville Corporation Court late this morning, issued two restraining orders against the Co-Operative Marketing Association, preventing officials of the organization from taking any further action in the criminal courts against the auction warehousemen for a period of 90 days. The order was issued following lengthly petitions had been filed by the Danville Warehouse Corporation and the Piedmont Warehouse Corporation. This is the first counter blow struck by the warehousemen against the "Co-Ops" since the issuance of four warrants against them a few days ago.

The temporary restraining orders were issued by the court without notice. Papers were being prepared early this afternoon in the office of the Clerk of the Court to be served on all of the parties involved as defendants.

This will give the Co-Operative Asociation through counsel the right to give notice of contest and would result in a date being set for a hearing thus placing the case squarely before the court for the hearing of evidence. Should the temporary injunctions be dissolved it would be possible for the auction warehousemen to go through the same proceeding and seek an injunction from one of the judges of the State Supreme Court. On the other hand were the injunctions to be made permanent then the "Co-Ops" would have the right of appeal.

The text of the restraining order asked for by the Danville Warehouse Corporation follows:

An injunction is granted in accordance with the prayer of the bill in this cause restraining the defendants from further proceeding with criminal prosecutions against complainants under the provisions of the act of the Virginia Assembly at its extra session of 11923 approved March 26, 1923 and set forth in chapter 109 of said extra session of 1923 and the said defendants the Tobacco Growers Co-Operativ Association the Hon. Harry Wooding, mayor of the city of Danville, the Hon. John W. Carter, Jr., commonwealth's attorney for the city of Danville and all other persons are hereby enjoined and restrained from all criminal prosecutions by warrant or otherwise against the Danville Warehouse Corporation, Inc., under the provisions of said act and this injunction order shall be effective for and during the term of 990 days from the entry thereof unless the same shall be enlarged.

But before this injunction shall take effect the said Danville Warehouse Corporation, Inc., or some one for it shall enter into a bond in the penalty of $1,000 before the clerk of this court to pay all such costs as may be awarded against it and all such damages as may be incurred in case this injunction shall be dissolved.

"Ever since the swearing out of warrants against the auction men several days ago, it was predicted by this paper that interesting injunction proceedings against the 'Co-Ops' might be noted.

"The petition for the injunction is filed by Meade and Meade who are making common cause in the fight. The document is a lengthy one but there are four basic allegations against the 'pool' one of these being that the marketing laws passed by the last special session of the General Assembly are unconstitutional, that the association officials are threatening to issue some hundred additional warrants and that to permit such acts would be to work a great injury on the warehouse business and that the interference in the normal business of auctioning tobacco would be such as to inflict an irreparable loss."

The papers rehearse in some details the old auction method of selling tobacco and then explains the co-operative plan, and the five year contract. The marketing laws passed not only in Virginia but in North Carolina are cited and it is charged that these laws are in violation of the fourteenth amendment of the constitution of the United States. Some space is given to pointing out the difficulty which the auction men would have in conforming with the strict letter of the law in tracing the title to every pile of tobacco displayed at auction and it is set forth that such a plan would virtually ruin the warehousemen and driven them out of business. Complaint also is made of that phase of the law which would permit the agents of a competitor in the same business in seeing the private records and books of the auction men. One clause specifically states that the warehousemen do not sell knowingly the tobacco of contract breakers at auction but that the agents of the warehouses have been instructed not to do so. C. D. Bryant signs the petition for the Piedmont Warehouse Corporation and James H. Wilson has signed the similar petition in the name of the Danville Warehouse Corporation.

This is the first legal action of its kind instituted in Virginia against the association.

Harry Wooding, Jr., attorney for the Cooperative Marketing Association, stated early this afternoon that the Association would seek to have the restraining order dissolved. At that hour he had not been served with formal papers but he was aware of the nature of the order, also of the petition seeking it. Mr. Wooding stated that he had not anticipated injunction proceedings at this stage, but that no time would be lost in combatting it. He proposes to file a notice seeking the dissolution of both the injunctions which will then bring it into court. It is probable that the question will be raised relative to the right of the court to enjoy the enforcement of any criminal law.

Good Morning Judge!

An average docket was tried in Mayor's court this morning. There was the usual run of drunks and disorderlies. There were several charged with violation of traffic ordinances and one fugitive from justice who was ordered turned over to Greensboro authorities.

Dr. K. W. Yarbrough, colored herb doctor, was fined $50 and costs for labeling his concoctions as though they had been prescribed by a regular physician. The warrant against Yarbrough, charging violation of the Mapp act was dismissed.

H. G. Evans, fugitive from justice, was captured last night on train No. 36, by Plain Clothes Officer J. N. Campbell, who acted on information received from Greensboro authorities. The mayor, this morning, ordered Evans to be turned over to the North Carolina city as soon as requisition papers were received.

BONAR LAW EXPIRES IN LONDON

TOWN TOPICS

The three story brick building standing on Patton street immediately below the courthouse is to be sold at auction on Saturday November 10 according to a large sign placed over the structure. The brick structure is owned at present by Jim Wilson, colored who has decided to part with it. Several years ago the city was interested in securing this property at a time when the removal of the Patton street fire station to that site was being debaed. Nothing came of the proposal. It is learned that the officials of the Y. W. C. A. have given some thought to the structure as a permanent home for that organization.

Ben Rippe has filed an application for a building permit for the construction of a two-site apartment house on Jefferson street in the vicinity of Paxton street. The structure is to cost $6,000. The contract has been awarded to L. B. Flora and work is to be undertaken without any further delay.

The executive committee of the Community Welfare Association held a meeting last night and appointed Miss Annie Redd Carter recently clerk of the Juvenile Court to take the place of Miss Catherine James who recently resigned. Mrs. Thomas R. Wright, a skilled and experienced social worker who hars been supplying in view of the recent reduction of the regular staff has kindly consented to give volunteer service. An additional appropriation of $300 was made to cover relief work for the current month and a publicity committee was appointed, this charged with the task of presenting the warm of the organization to local associations and clubs. Members of the commitee are Mrs I. Allan Herman, Rev. J. M. Shelburne and Mrs. T. R. White.

Fire Chief Lewis Mitchell has called a meeting of all the city firemen to be held at Patton street on Thursday night at eight o'clock. The local department is interested in the establishment of a relief fund by which retired members of the department might profit also those so unfortunate as to be overcome with sickness. S. J. Garthright of Richmond is coming to make an address and to suggest means of secuting the fund. He is recommended by Fire Chief Raffo, of Richmond, and is understood to have had a good deal of experience in establishing relief funds. Danville is said to be the only city of size in the state which has not such a fund.

Allen school on North Main street extension will be the scene of a Hallowe'en party on Wednesday night, beginning at 8 o'clock. The public in general is invited to attend.

On Saturday afternoon beginning at 3 o'clock "Flag Day" will be observed by the Allen school near the city with appropriate exercises. Several prominent speakers have been secured for the occasion, these including Mayor Harry Wooding, H. R. Fitzgerald and Senator Booker. A flag and Bible will be presented by the J. O. A. M. and the Red Men of Danville.

Mrs. Bettie Let, who went from Danville as a W. C. T. U. representative to participate in the welcoming of Lloyd and Dame George in Richmond Sunday, has returned to the city. Mrs. Lea stated this morning that the distinguished visitors were accorded a hearty welcome. She said the W. C. T. U. was there in full force, displaying a large banner welcoming the visitors.

The suit which Mrs. Odie Sallie has filed against the City of Danville for the recovery of $7,000 relates, it was learned this afternoon, to alleged injuries to the knee of the, plaintiff which are said to have been sustained on Claiborne street. The declaration in the suit has not been filed.

Explosion Wrecks Delane's Home

(By The Associated Press)

HAVANA, Oct. 30.—An explosion believed by police to have been caused by a dynamite bomb, seriously damaged the home of Juan Francisco Delane, second chief of the national secret police here early today. Police are working on the theory that it was placed by sympathizers with the striking workers of the Papeleria Cubana, or Cuban Paper company. The interior of the room in which the explosion occurred was severely damaged but no one was injured.

Probe Into Suicide Centers On Search Of Man By Police

Joe Morgan, Stranger Here, Slashed Throat With Razor Blade In Jail—Search Had Been Made Of Clothing.

Early this afternoon a message received by the police department from Spray, N. C., contained the information that Mrs. Morgan is on her way to Danville to take charge of her husband's remains. An earlier message from the chief of police of Asheville requested that the body be prepared for burial and that further instructions as to burial be awaited.

A coroner's jury which this morning made an exhaustive enquiry into the suicide of Joe M. Morgan in the city jail last night decided after brief deliberation that the man "came to his death by reason of wound of neck made by a razor blade, self-inflicted."

Dr. J. E. Taylor conducted the inquest at the courthouse after the body had been viewed by the coroner's jury composed of B. Sadler, J. M. Ley, J. W. McBride, G. W. Aaron, R. R. Payne and J. R. Bondurant.

The inquest centred principally on the degree of the search made of Morgan who appeared at police headquarters last night, asserting that he was being pursued and declaring that he wished to be locked up for the night. Night Desk Sergeant J. R. Nostrandt searched the man and he was again searched at the jail by City Jailor Nelson Dixon, but in neither of these searches was revealed the two-inch safety razor blade with which he slashed his throat nor the $13.94 which was also found in his pocket at the General Hospital where he died.

The evidence of seven witnesses who were put on the stand this morning revealed not only the degree of the search made, but also the state of mind in which Morgan was when he hastened to the courthouse asking for protection and filled with apprehension over the activities of men who, he said had pursued him from Spray to Danville. During the testimony the name of the Ku Klux Klan was brought in and Morgan was quoted by Jailor Nelson Dixon as having stated that the organization "was after" him for failing to provide for his wife and mother-in-law in the North Carolina city. Summary of the evidence further shows that nobody imagined that he had a razor blade in his pocket but that this might readily have been overlooked in the search made of him. How the money appeared on the man's person after all of his pockets had been searched is also not known. It was shown, however, that Morgan had been in jail for barely ten minutes when he asked for a knife to pair his nails, and failing to get one asked for a razor blade which he also failed to obtain. The next thing prisoners knew was that Morgan was pulling out the loose flesh under his jaw and was making livid scars across it with the small blade, threatening those who sought to stop him and opening such terrible wounds that it was not many minutes before he subsided to the floor in a pool of blood whispering that his name was Joe Morgan and that he came from North Carolina.

The chief of police of Spray, in a telephone message with a representative of the Bee this morning, stated that Morgan was known there as a bad character. He said that the man had served two terms in the federal penitentiary. He was raised in Spray, he said, but when he was released from the Atlanta prison about four years ago he returned there for a short time and was married to a Miss Heffinger, who survives him with two children. The officer stated that Morgan soon moved to Steubenville, Ohio, but left his family in Spray.

Morgan returned to Spray about two weeks ago, the officer said. Since his return a message was received from the authorities making injuiry about the man. The Spray authorities located him and wired the Ohio police to that effect but as yet had not received any further message regarding him. The police chief said that he understood that Morgan had again married while in Ohio and it was probably on a bigamy charge that he was being sought. The message had stated that he had deserted his wife in that State.

It was said that Morgan's mind did not seem unbalanced when last seen in Spray. The police official said that there was nothing to Morgan's contention that a mob had pursued him. He explained that the fact that he knew that he was probably being sought here on his mind until it became unbalanced.

Morgan, when he presented himself at police headquarters and asked to be locked up for the night, appeared to be perfectly sober, but very nervous. He said that he had come from Spray yesterday, having been chased from that place by a mob of men who wanted to kill him. He then proceeded to name three members of the mob, the names of the men being known in Danville. While he was being searched by officers preparatory to being placed in jail he talked widly of a number of things. He stated that he had deserted his wife in Steubenville, Ohio, and it was for this deed that the Spray mob sought to punish him. He told of being chased from place to place by a mob. He also asserted that members of the "Spray mob" had injected something into his body, which caused him great pain.

The man intimated in his talk that

Great Britain Is Shocked by Death of Former Premier

Distinguished Statesman Passed Away Early This Morning From Septic Pneumonia Attack—Was Premier Seven Months, Succeeding Lloyd George.

(By The Associated Press.)

LONDON, Oct. 30.—Andrew Bonar Law for seven months prime minister of Great Britain, died in his modest London home at 3 o'clock this morning. The official bulletin issued by the physicians who attended the former premier said death came following an acute attack of septic pneumonia.

The death of Mr. Bonar Law will be a shock to Great Britain, for while it was known that his condition was very serious, it was not expected that the end was so near.

Five months ago—on May 20, he resigned the premiership because of a throat malady which for a long time had troubled him. Even then he was reluctant to admit that his career was finished and retained his seat in the House of Commons where he since has made two or three appearances.

Ten days ago, Mr. Bonar Law returned to London from Brighton after a sojourn of several weeks. His physicians issued a statement saying he had contracted a severe chill, but the public did not suspect that the end was no near until they read in this morning's newspapers that he had developed septic pneumonia, a condition that gave rise to considerable anxiety; but soon after extras appeared giving the news of his death.

"The ex-premier's daughter and his two surviving sons, Anthony and Richard, were at the bedside when death came. Two sons were killed

The national assembly at Angora voted yesterday to establish a republic. Mustapha Kemal Pasha was unanimously elected president with power to nominate a premier.

Ismet Pasha, the new premier, was a noutstanding figure at the Lausanne conferences and was largely instrumental in bringing about the freedom of Turkey from control by the powers.

LLOYD GEORGE WIRES REGRETS TO DAUGHTER

(By The Associated Press)

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 30.—Word of the death of Bonar Law was received with deep regret by David Lloyd George upon his arrival here today. News of the passing away of the British statesman was kept from Mr. Lloyd George by his assistants until he had finished breakfast in his private car. He then dispatched a message to the daughter of the late premier and in a statement to the press said:

"I have heard the sad news with deep regret tinged with relief that the long and severe suffering has at last come to a peaceful end... I saw him shortly before I left for this country and the news certainly was not unexpected by me.

"During the last years of the war and the first years of peace we worked in closer cooperation and partnership than probably another two ministers of the crown had ever worked before. There was hardly a day we did not meet and not a day we did not communicate with each other and interchange views. No man could wish for a more loyal, sagacious and helpful partner in the times of emergency.

"Although we had serious poltical views during the past year, our friendship never broke and we met just a few days before I left for these shores. It fills me with sadness to think I shall never meet him again."

Several hundred Welsh singers assembled at the station to greet Mr. Lloyd George with welcoming songs, paused in their greetings to pay respect to the late British statesman when the news became known to them.

Great Britain Has Accepted Terms Of Premier Of France

America Will Be Asked Immediately to Designate Members—Willis Booth, Head of International Commerce Chamber, Sails For Paris to Arrange Meeting.

(By The Associated Press)

LONDON, Oct. 30.— Great Britain has accepted the terms specified by Premier Poincare of France for a conference of experts to consider the reparation question.

The American government has been acquainted with the willingness of all the countries concerned in the reparation problem to participate in the conference and will be asked immediately to designate its members of the committee of experts.

WILLS BOOTH SAILS

(By The Associated Press)

NEW YORK, Oct. 30.— Wills H. Booth, president of the International Chamber of Commerce and vice president of the Guaranty Trust Company, sailed today on the Mauretania for Paris to arrange for a conference of delegate sfrom 38 nations to make recommendations regarding the proposed reparations discussion advocated by Secretary of State Hughes.

Mr. Booth was hesitant in discussing the Paris session which begins November 12, but it was reported his hurried trip concerned selection of the committee of financial experts who, under the Hughes' plan, would pass on the amount that Germany might be expected to pay.

"I think it will be a very important session," was all Mr. Booth would say of the Paris conference.

Injured Boy Is In Serious Plight

The condition of Taft Duncan, nine-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Duncan, 525 North Main street who was terribly injured last night in an automobile accident on North Main street, remained in critical condition at the General Hospital early this afternoon. The lad remained in a stupor most of the time and grave doubt was expressed for his recovery. The little boy was described as suffering from a number of injuries, the worst of which is a fractured skull and a gaping wound in the head caused by the handle of the door on Harry Lewis' automobile which struck the child, apparently after he had been struck by another machine into the path of that of Mr. Lewis. He has also serious facial injuries.

It is not known just how the accident occurred, but it is believed that the boy was first struck by a Ford roadster and knocked into a Buick roadster driven by Harry C. Lewis. The youth's head struck the handle of the door of the Lewis car, bending it back against the side.

Mr. Lewis stated last night to a reporter that several cars passed at the time of the accident and that he never saw the lad, but felt the impact of his body against the car. He, however, did not think that it was a human body, but some inanimate object. He stopped his car when he heard several women screaming.

When he went back he found the lad lying in the street with an ugly gash in his head.

It was Mr. Lewis' opinion that another car knocked the lad into his car. This opinion is also held by Taft Duncan's father, who talked to a number of persons who were near the scene at the time.

A Ford roadster was seen to stop, the driver step out of his machine and look back, then re enter his car and drive off.

RHENISH REPUBLIC BEGS FOR SUPPORT OF WORLD

(By The Associated Press)

WIESBADEN, Germany, Oct. 30.— The provisional government of the Rhineland republic has sent the following message to all the nations of the world:

"The Rhenish people has taken in hand the direction of its destinies. It has proclaimed its full independence and definitely rejected foreign dominion.

"The provisional government of the Rhenish government sends to all the nations of the world fraternal greetings. The Rhenish people solemnly proclaimed the will of the Rhinelanders to live in peace and friendship with all the Universe; it condemns the world war lost by Prussia and declares itself ready to pay its share of reparations.

SOUTH GOSTON NEWS

SOUTH BOSTON, Va., Oct. 27—A meeting was held in the rooms of the Young Men's Business Club on Monday evening for the purpose of forming an associated charities organization For many years work of this nature was carried on through an organization known as the Charity Club. Mrs. J. V Thompson was one of the most enthusiastic members of this club and since her removal to another town, the work has gone down for lack of a leader. In order to do a larger work, the associated charities has been organized. A committee formed of a lady and gentleman from each church and by Kolbe Curtice of the Health Department held a meeting on Tuesday afternoon at which time further plans were laid. A meeting will be held early next week, when officers will be elected and plans for the work of the organization will be made.

Although the weather was inclement on Tuesday evening an appreciative audience gathered to enjoy the lecture of Richard Thomas Wycher on Folk-Lore of the South During the lecture Mr. Wycher spoke in terms of praise of the great work which was done by Joel Chandler Harris and the splendid contribution he made to American literature

Mr Hal J. Watkins, who has been superintendent of the Presbyterian church school for many years resigned from the position recently. Mr. Watkins gave as his reason for doing so that his time was so much taken up with the work connected with being county superintendent of schools. Mr. Jack Lovelace was appointed to succeed Mr. Watkins as superintendent of the church school

The Parent-Teachers association held a short business meeting on Tuesday night Mrs. L D Johnston tendered her resignation as president of the organization, which was accepted and Roderick Lacy, principal of the High school was elected as the new president. Mrs Johnston has done a great work in building up the association to its present standard and her resignation was accepted with regrets. Mr Lacy is deeply interested in the work and is well qualified as a leader for the organization.

Sixty Palefaces Adopted By Red Men Last Night

Over 1,000 attended the Red Men powwow last night at Schoolfield, when 60 initiates or palefaces were adopted by the three local tribes, Motega, Chickasaw and Poquoson, the meeting being held in the auditorium of the Baltimore avenue school. Among the notables who attended the convention were Congressman J. Murray Hooker, State Senator Marshall B. Booker, Great Icohonee Chas. E. Pass, Harrisburg, Pa: Great Sachem E R. Cole, Richmond, Va., State Secretary A. M. Tennis, Grand Guard Jacob Shaner, and Great Sachem E. R. Emory, of North Carolina.

The program of the evening started off with a dinner attended by the distinguished visitors and a committee of thirty from the local tribes at Hylton Hall.

Following the supper the distinguished guests were escorted to the auditorium at the Baltimore avenue school by a degree team in full regalia There followed the work of initiating the unusually large class of 60, headed by Senator Marshall Bookker, who was the first to ride the goat After the degrees were exemplified the meeting was turned over to Congressman J Murray Hooker, who presided during the rest of the evening.

The address of welcome was delivered by the Great Senior Sagamore of Virginia, Dr. G. W. Johnson, in behalf of Motega tribe Mayor Harry Wooding made the address of welcome in behalf of the city and community, acting as mayor protem of Schoolfield for the evening

Great Sachem Edwin R Cole, of Richmond, made an impressive response, stating that never before in his memory had such elaborate preparations been made for a meeting of Red Men.

One of the most inspiring addresses of the evening was made by H R. Fitzgerald, president of the Riverside and Dan River Cotton Mills, who spoke of the part played by the Red Men in engendering a happy spirit in Schoolfield. Mr Fitzgerald touched upon the splendid work of the members of the order in the mill community and commended their work in no uncertain terms

The speaker of the evening, Chas. E Pass, Grand Senior Sagamore, was introduced by Clifton J. Parrott, chairman of the committee in charge of arrangements

Mr. Pass spoke for thirty--five minutes on fraternalism and the opportunities of the order in America for real constructive work

When seen last night after the convention by a Registetr reported, Mr. Pass said he had been forcibly impressed with the industrial system in force at the Riverside and Dan River Cotton Mills. He said that he had spent half his life as a worker in a large plant in Pennsylvania that built engines; that he was well acquainted with various industrial plans that had been carried out but that none had achieved such a spirit of co-operation and good fellowship as was to be noted at Schoolfield He added that if the same spirit could be engendered in the coal fields of Pennsylvania that it would be a wonderful thing for the United States

Among the other speakers last night were Senator Booker, L J Rushworth, H. E. Spessard, A M. Tennis and George W. Banton.

Mr. Parrott stated last night that fully 250 Red Men from North Carolina, 35 from Lynchburg, and 250 from other tribes attended the meeting, making a total of more than one thousand

Wanderer Seeks Out Jail in Which to End His Life; Cuts Throat

he had just come from Stebenville, Ohio, where he had seen his wife He had first gone to Spray and then had come to Danville.

Officers were led to believe by Morgan's talk and his nervous gestures that he was filld up with dope and if he were placed in jail the effects of the drug would wear off by morning

In the search by officers in police headquarters not a thing was taken from Morgan except a note book, a knife and two pair of cuff links. Not a cent of money was found on his person. He was again searched by jail attendants unde rthe sbupervision of Jailor Dixon Nothing was found in the second search.

About fifteen minutes after he had been placed in jail a trusty came running to police headquarters bearing the information that Morgan had cut his throat Dr J. E. Taylor, city coroner happened to be in the building at the time and went to the jail immediately and had the man placed in a car and taken to general hospital. Morgan lived about two minutes after he reached the hospital

When Morgan was placed in the large cell room, Jailor Dixon warned the men in jail that the man was either a dope fiend or was crazy and that they had better keep an eye on him Almost immediately after the jailor left the room, Morgan took eighteen dollars in bills from some place about his person and offered it to one of his fellow-prisoners, saying, "You can have this." The man however thinking that he was being kidded or that Morgan was, in fact, crazy, did not take the money

Morgan then passed into a cell secured a razor blade from his person and made a pass as though to cut his throat. At this moment Shirley Warren, in jail for a short term, happened to pas sthe door and saw what Morgan intended doing He grabbed the would-be suicide's arm and attempted to wrest the razor blade from him Morgan jerked his arm free and rushed at Warren, who ran.

With fifteen or twenty prisoners looking on Morgan proceeded to cut his throat, hacking a deep gash from ear to ear, and then, to make his demise double sure, cut deeply across both wrists. He then fell to the floor, blood rushing from his self-inflicted wounds. None of the prisoners, except Warren tried to stop the act

A prisoner rushed to the door opening into the main corrider and called for the jailor. Mr. Dixon, at that time had gone to get his supper at the Pittsylvania cafe, and a trusty, John Dix responded Dix reported the matter to Night Sergeant Nostrand

When Dr. Taylor examined the man in the jail he saw that there was little chance for him, but ordered him taken to the hospital. Dr. Taylor said last night that Morgan had succeeded in severing both the jugular vein and the carotid artery. He also had cut large blood vessels in both wrists It was considered remarkable that he lived as long as he did.

Officers are puzzled as to where Morgan hid his razor blade and his money. $19 04 were found in his pocket at the hospital, but evidently he had this with the razor blade hidden somewhere else on his person when searched. All men committed to jail, whether for crime or as vagrants, are carefully searched both by officers and by the jailor. This is especially true of those who appear to be more or less unbalanced

It is not certain whether he had carefully planned his course of action or did it on the spur of the moment after he was placed in jail. The fact that he had carefully concealed the razor blade would indicate that he had planned to kill himself. Why he should choose a jail as the place is also puzzling Perhaps he feared that if ended his life on the street or in some out-of-the-way place his body would not receive the same attention as if it were in the hands of duly constituted authorities.

The note book taken from his person by police gave his address as 526 Adams street, Steubenville, Ohio noted in the book was the address of Mrs. Pearl Curtis, Winlock, Washington to be notified in case of accident There were memoranda that would indicate that Morgan was a steel worker

When he first appeared at police headquarters he gave his address as Spray, N C said that he was married and was out of work It is said that he told a prisoner at the jail that his home was in Asheville, N C.

Sergeant Edwards stated last night that he had already sent a telegram to the Steubenville O address and would also communicate with the chief of police of that city in order to learn if possible what disposition to make of Morgan's body The sergeant also said that he would try to get in touch with Spray men mentioned by Morgan to secure information about the man

Morgan was neatly dressed in a new suit of clothes and did not look like a down-and-outer And the $19 04 found in his pockets prove that he could have afforded lodging at a hotel

Jailor Dixon stated last night that when Morgan was admitted to the jail he gave a sign of relief and said "Oh I am so glad I am safe here they won't kill me now." The jailor also said that Morgan resisted a search at the jail but not to any degree and that every pocket in his clothes was searched and his clothes felt to see that he had nothing concealed about his person

An inquest in the Morgan suicide will be held this morning at 10 o'clock by City Coroner J E Taylor witnesses having been summoned for that hour

ALLEN S. CLARK RETURNS FROM LEGION MEET

Allen S. Clarke, member of the Virginia delegation to the national convention of the American Legion in San Francisco recently, returned to Danville yesterday.

The Virginia delegation on its way back picked up Governor Trinkle in Chicago and brought him back to Virginia in its private car. The governor had been out on a speaking tour with Senator Royal S Copeland, of New York, in the interest of the Thomas Jefferson foundation

Mr. Clarke stated that the national convention was harmonious affair notwithstanding press reports to the contrary The fight on the Ku Klux Klan was misrepresented throughout, there being, in fact, no fight on the klan. He also stated that except for one speech, there was no fight on the bonus The convention he said, was practically unanimous for the bonus, and he predicted that the bonus would be passed at the next Congress by overwhelming majorities.

On the way back the delegation had as its guest from San Frisco to Los Angeles Pola Negri, famous as an in and out fiancee of Charlie Chaplin and a screen actress of some note While in Los Angeles the delegation had tea with Mary Pickford, her hushand, Douglas Fairbanks and Jack Pickford brother of Mary.

It was an altogether delightful trip unstanding American men from all sections of the country.

SLACKENING NATURAL IN AUTO TRADE

CLEVELAND, Oct 29—Although the auto business has not picked up here as much as some of the manufacturers expected this fall, other motor car builders pointed out today that business has maintained a terrific pace for eighteen months and the slackening is only natural. Automobile ownership in this county is increasing at the rate of 29 per cent a year and the number of cars in operation is expected to reach 170 000 by January 1. Despite the slowiwng up one manufacturer shipped 1,100 cars in September The steel business being placed here is largely for use in making motors although makers of railroad specialties and farm implement makers also are in the market for light requirements.

DATA ON RAILROADS FOR AUGUST REPORTED

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Oct. 29—Railroads during August had 1,973,505 persons on their payrolls, and paid out $270,187,583 to them in wages.

The Interstate Commerce Commission, which reported these figures today, said the number of employes was 18818 greater than the total for July and 379,431 more than were employed during August a year ago when the shipmen's strike was in progress.

Actual average earnings during August were shown to be a trifle greater than during August, 1922. Trainmen last August earned an average of $193 apiece, while a year ago their average pay was $192.

WILL MEET TODAY.

The regular meeting of the Parent-Teachers' association of Robert E. Lee school will be held at the school auditorium at 3 o'clock on Tuesday afternoon.

A SUCCESSFUL MEETING

Evangilistic services have been in progress for four weeks on the field composed of Arbor, Laurel Grove, Mt Tabor and Mt. Zion Baptist churches.

The meeting closed on Sunday, when 22 persons were baptized by Rev. E. L. Hardcastle, the pastor. The preaching of Evangilist M. F. Sanford was most acceptable and helpful to the whole community. There were 69 additions to the churches, 57 by baptism.

SOUTHERN RAILWAY SYSTEM

The double-tracking of the Southern Railway trunk line from Washington to Atlanta, 637 miles, cost $52,000,000.

Plowing back the earnings

In the ten years ending 1920 freight traffic on the Southern Railway System more than doubled. This was a very much larger gain than was shown by the railroads of the country as a whole. The South was growing faster than the rest of the country.

The Southern had to meet the test, but we had provided for such a demand. In these ten years we had expended $104,000,000 of new capital to increase the carrying capacity of our lines.

Our double-track had been increased from 443 to 1,021 miles; yard tracks and sidings from 2,786 to 3,351 miles; the tractive power of our locomotives had been increased 40 per cent; our average freight trainload had mounted from 274 to 500 tons, a notable gain in operating efficiency.

Of the $104,000,000 expended for additions and betterments, $21,000,000 only was obtained by the sale of new securities. The other $83,000,000 was taken from earnings and used in the improvement of the properties.

The upbuilding of the Southern Railway System to keep pace with the South has been planned with an understanding of the transportation needs of the South by men bred in the traditions of the South to know its problems.

The Southern serves the South, and it will serve the greater South of the future.

Southern Railway System last year spent in the South $20,000,000 more than it received from the South.

Theft of U. S. Secret Code in 1908 Comes Out in Stokes Case

Testimony Relating To Missing Documents From Rumania Figures In Record Of Sensational Divorce Case.

(By The Associated Press)

NEW YORK, Oct 30 — Testimony as to the theft of the secret code of the United States from the legation at Bucharest, Rumania, in 1908 is a part of the record of the sensational divorce action of W E D Stokes against Helen Elwood Stokes

The testimony was given yesterday during cross examination of Horace K Knowles, minister to Rumania at the time of the theft He had previously testified that he had seen Mrs. Stokes in the apartment of Edgar T Wallace, the principal co-respondent.

Counsel for Mrs Stokes sought to make Mr. Knowles admit that Elihu Root, then secretary of state, had transferred him to Nicaragua as a result of his connection with the theft. This, Mr Knowles denied and also said he had no personal knowledge of the lawyer's assertion that Mr Root later had recovered the code by purchasing it from a Russian for $20,000 after the Japanese ambassador at St Petersburg had refused to pay $40,000 for it

Mr Knowles testified that he had been unable to find a safe hiding place for the code book in the Bucharest legation and that it had disappeared shortly after his arrival It later was learned that a French servant in the legation had stolen it.

Chicago Judge Continues War On Rum Parlors

(By The Associated Press)

CHICAGO, Oct 30 —Chicago's "bone dry" area, limited to the city proper during Mayor Dever's dry law enforcement campaign, is extending its territory to suburbs as Federal Judge Adam C Cliffe continues to act on injunction suits against violators of the Volstead law.

More than a score road houses and suburban soft drink parlors were closed as a result of injunction orders issued yesterday

During the week which the government seeks to close by the jurisdiction police whose campaign has resulted in closing more than 1,000 saloons

While the federal orders went out against outlying saloons and liquor resorts, a police order was issued requiring proprietors of downtown coffee shops to do away with swinging doors, bar rails and other fixtures reminiscent of the old time saloon.

Owners of 29 downtown soft drink parlors who have not had their licenses revoked were told they would be put on their honor if they followed the order. Detectives making hourly visits to these shops for 24 hours a day have found no violations

Matthes Reviews His Troops and Commends Them

COBLENZ, Oct 30.— The old Schloss parade ground, every inch of which was trodden by doughboy hobnails during the American occupation, today was the scene of oJseph Matthes' "first review of his newly organized republican troops"

The Germans for years flocked to the square to watch the Americans drill but there were no crowds today because French troops guarded the approaches

About 300 young men without uniforms and without arms and wearing green caps marched up the grounds and back again many times to the commands of young captains and lieutenants As they passed for inspection Matthes spoke to many of his soldiers shook hands with others and in two instances, noticing a bandaged head, solicitiously inquired in what affray the man was wounded When informed that it was at the battle for Crefeld, Matthes shook hands again and thanked the soldiers for their brave services in a deserving cause

The premier of the Rhineland republic," wearing a dark business suit and a tam-O-shanter tilted sideways, plainly showed pride in the first public drill of the new republican headquarters guard

"They're a fine lot of young fellow," he said, "splendid representatives of the young Rhinelanders who want their independence We have 2,000 of just such soldiers here and at other places"

The palace now stove pipes sticking from the windows of the first floor, where soldier messes have been established for the men quartered within

The Y M C A hut built for the entertainment of the American doughboys is to be taken over for the accommodation of Matthes men who are doing duty as a garrison at the headquarters of the provisional government

French troops guarding the palace and approaches to its gardens occupy part of the hut but the other half is made ready to quarter the separatists

Examination Of Skull Found Shows Man Lived In U. S. In Remote Era

(By The Associated Press.)

SANTA BARBARA, Cal., Oct. 30 — As a result of further excavations where the skulls of pre-historic men were found by Smithsonian Institution investigators last Thursday, scientists are more firmly convinced that one of the most important scientific discoveries of recent years has been made

Minute inspection of the skulls and of the formation in which they were imbedded continues to point to the great remoteness of the era in which the Santa Barbara man lived, declares Dr. J P. Harrington, who uncovered the skeleton, reiterating his original assertion that the discovery would bring about a complete revision of anthropological theories concerning the North American continent The skulls, with the beetling brows and receding foreheads, he declared, definitely establish in his opinion the fact that North America was discovered thousands of years before Columbus' historic arrival, by primitive ape-like men just in the transitory period from anthropoid to man, who crossed from Asia by way of Behring Strait, found an uninhabited land and laid the foundation of aborddinginal civilization

The spot where the skulls lay imbedded in the hard pan is similar to the place where the primitive remains of the first inhabitants of Scotland were found on what is known as the "fifty foot beach" which although now is high and dry, was on the ocean bed in the early days of Neolithic age approximately 35,000 years ago Those men came into existence as the neonderthal man was beginning to give way to new invasions from the East They used stone weapons and tools of the same general appearance as found with the skulls of the Santa Barbara man Closer examination of the Santa Barbara skulls yesterday brought out more plainly the resemblance of the upper structure to that of the Neanderthal and Heidelberg men who lived in Europe at a time estimated variously at from 25,000 to 50,000 years ago and suddenly disappeared to be replaced by modern man, Dr Harrington said

INSTITUTION NOT PREPARED TO ACCEPT THEORY YET

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Oct 30 —The Smithsonian Institution is not yet prepared to accept the theory of J P. Harrington, one of its scientific investigators, that he has found near Santa Barbara, Calif., the bones of a preneanderthal man.

Although for the most part reserved in their comment, officials of the institution and other Washington scientists make no secret of their reluctance to treat the California discoveries as epock-making until a careful study of them has been made. In order that there may be no unnecessary delay, the institution today ordered an examination to be made in New York before a group of the country's greatest anthropologists

Dr. Jesse E. Fewkes, director of the Bureau of Entomology of the institution, said he regarded it as extremely improbable that pre-neanderthal man had left traces in California, although he did not care to cast discredit upon Mr. Harrington's claim until its authenticity had been passed on by competent experts

A similar opinion was expressed by Dr Ales Hrdlicka, curator of the national museum He asserted that there was little possibility of primitive man ever having inhabited the region of Santa Barbara

Dr Fewkes telegraphed Mr Harrington to prepare the skeletal remains for shipment to New York Until he sees them, Dr Fewkes says, and their authenticity is to be held until institution officials would hold an investigation.

The normal thickness, it is pointed out, here is not conclusive proof of antiquity unless the excavation is conducted along certain scientific lines Such a skull must be turned up in almost any cemetery, experts say, and especially in any Asiatic or Indian cemetery There are exhibits in the Smithsonian of persons who died recently with jawbones weighing three or four times the normal. Sometimes the skulls of intelligent persons are found to be almost ape-like—curious throw backs if the evolution of man's descent is to be accepted.

If Mr Harrington's find should prove to be pre-historic it would leave a gap of 200,000 years until the next evidence of human life on the American continent Thus far no such evidence has been found dating back more than 10,000 years On the other hand, scientists have held that if human life really existed here 200,000 or 300,000 years ago there should be abundant evidence of it in river channels and rock quarries and it would not be confined to the Pacific coast

Various Subjects Are Taken Up By Bankers At Washington Meet

(By The Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, Oct. 30 — Discussion of a number of important subjects treated in committee reports including safeguards for public utility bonds, irrigation and foreign securities and the electric railway situation, occupied delegates at today's business session of the annual convention of the Investment Bankers Association of America Speakers on today's program included Garrard B Winston, assistant secretary of the treasury, David F Houston, president of the Bell Telephone Security Company and Dr L S Rowe, director of the Pan-American union

Speaking of the rapid extension of American investments in Latin-American countries in the last twenty years, Dr Rowe said nothing had been contributed more to the increasing measure of good will toward the United States in those nations American investments there he said, have passed from the "period of adventure to the period of helpful productive and permanent investment.'

The operation of increasingly stable and efficient American enterprises in Latin-America, Dr Rowe said, has had a far reaching influence in improving labor and social condition there generally

Recreation features on the program for the delegates today, included a golf tournament and a visit to Fort Myer, Virginia, to view a cavalry and artillery drill. The annual banquet will be held tonight with Secretary Hoover the chief speaker

The sessions will continue through tomorrow, when officers will be elected for the ensuing year

James W Welsh, of New York, secretary of the American Electric Railway Association, told the bankers that "electric railways have come back" He declared government figures showing that 117 car rides were sold in 1922 for each inhabitant of the United States as compared with 109 in 1917 and 100 in 1912 "put aside the fear' that "competition from the motor xvehicle, either in the form of the comon carrier, the bus, the jitney or the private automobile, is at the expense of the electric railways"

The average fare throughout the country now, he said was 7.3 cents, a recession of one-fifth of a cent since 1921 while the operating ratio last year was seven per cent less than in 1920 A decline in track mileage since 1917 he added has been more than offset by increased supplemental bus service while it was estimated that $250,000,000 would be spent this year for improvements as compared with $150,000 000 in 1921 More than 80,000 street cars are in operation he said 13,000 new cars having been purchased in the last five years

"Fixed fares special taxes and imposts, paving charges, labor demands strikes, rising costs and in many cases unrestricted competition have had their sway" declared Mr Welsh "but the cars keep running"

TOBACCO YIELD IN VA. TO EXCEED ESTIMATES

(By The Associated Press)

RICHMOND, Va., Oct. 30 —The Virginia tobacco crop on the whole is expected to grade fair to good and the yield now appears to exceed the estimates made before harvest time, according to the fifth district Federal Reserve Baoks monthly review of business and agricultural conditions published today

Auction and co-operative warehouses in the bright belt, where the markets opened October 1 have been receiving a steady stream of tobacco, the review asserts, the quality of product, as is customary during the first two or three weeks the markets are open, being of comparatively low grade and demanding correspondingly low prices. The prices, however are characterized "as fairly satisfactory" considering the quality offered.

The Virginia dark markets says the review, will not open until next Monday.

The crop in North Carolina, authorities in that State report is not as good as had been expected auction warehouses sold 50,244,645 pounds of tobacco to rgrowers during September, an average price of $18 95 per hundred pounds, according to the bank's review. In the same month last year 45,246,946 pounds at an average of $25.15 were sold The crop is expected to total 347,000,000 pounds.

The tobacco season in South Carolina, where the crop has nearly all been har vested, is said to have been very successful, the yield being large, prices good and quality satisfactory

The forecast on October 1, of the estimated yield in West Virginia was somewhat reduced from the estimate made on September 1 the latest figure being 7,371,000 as compered with 7,529,000 a month earlier and 7,425,000 pounds produced last year

Proclaim General Strike In Saxony

(By The Associated Press)

BERLIN, Oct. 30 — The socialist trade unions in Saxony have decided to proclaim a three days general strike throughout Saxony beginning this morning, it is announced in Dresden advices dealing with the developments consequent upon the intervention of the federal government in that state The publication of a manifesto addressed to the public by the ex-premier, on the situation in Saxony has been prohibited by the military authorities.

Dr. Carl Heinze, the newly appointed commission of the Reich in Saxon has issued an appeal in which he says his chief task is to restore order in Saxony with the help of the military and to put an end plundering and terrorism in the streets and factories.

Dr. Heinze simultaneously announced the names of the officials who are carrying on the administratio of the state until the new government is formed The military governor of Saxony has prohibited all political meetings

Mellon Declares That Charges Of Gov. Pinchot Not Founded On Facts

(By Chicago Tribune Service)

WASHINGTON, Oct. 30.— Powers which may be invoked by the state authorities in the prohibition enforcement laws in Pennsylvania was cited by Secretary Mellon in a letter published today to Governor Pinchot in which he declared the Pennsylvania executive's assertions that the treasury was not co-operating by every means, to that end were "gratuatious and not founded on fact."

Replying categorically to Mr. Pinchot's criticisms of federal prohibition enforcement in his leter to Mr Melon of Sunday, the treasury head declared in conclusion that it would be more profitable to "expend energies" in an effort to ascertain the "real facts" and better enforce the law than in "unjustified criticism."

The breweries and distilleries detected in violation of [illegible] ing dealt with in strict accordance with its provisions Mr Melon said in citing the action taken in a number of cases in Pennsylvania brought up in Mr Pinchot's letter Before Pennsylvania executive raised the question, Mr Mellon said, he had "already directed that a re-survey of breweries and of the allowance of alcohol for non-beverage purposes" he made in that state

While stating that as desired by Mr Pinchot, he would authorize federal permits the inspection of the stilleries and breweries by the Pennsylvania enforcement authorities, Mr Mellon in this connection called the governors attention to "the authority for inquiry which you already have under the laws of your own state." Under this state authority, he said the means of obtaining such warrants for such a purpose [illegible] more readily available than under the federal statutes.

Stinnes Group In Conference With Franzen

(By The Associated Press)

DUESSELDORF, Oct 30 — Hugo Stinnes and a party of industrial associates arrived in Duesseldorf today and immediately went into conference with M Franzen, head of the inter-Allied minister and manufactory control committee.

The conference was secret there were rumors that the members of the Stinnes group had come prepared to sign an agreement for the resumption of reparation deliveries which had been in process of negotiation for several weeks.

It is uncertain as yet whether the agreement if it is signed will be made public here or in Paris but it is considered probable the official text will be issued from the French foreign office

Among the rumored terms of the proposed accord is an agreement by the industrialists to begin deliveries at once Berlin agreegin to reimburse the operators for such deliveries after April next and also for the intervening period at some future date not yet fixed

France is disposed to forego insistence upon payment of the coal tax for the present with the understanding that it shall be resumed with the arrears when the Berlin government begins to pay the industrialists for their deliveries

Berlin, according to the current reports, also agrees in common with the industrialists to recognize the present regime of railroad control

It is admited, however that all these terms are conjecture although the authorities in close touch with the negotiations hint that in general they are not far from accuracy

Lloyd George Makes Appeal to America to Put An End to War

Declares Salvation Of Civilization Is Dependent Upon Timely Thinking Translated Into Resolute Action Against Forces Working to Overthrow World.

(By The Associated Press)

RICHMOND, Va., Oct 30 —Salvation of the world's civilization is dependent upon timely thinking translated into resolute action against the forces of destruction now working toward its overthrow This is the expressed conviction of David Lloyd George, who left Richmond for Philadelphia shortly before last midnight after a two days' tour of Virginia battlefields

The distinguished visitor, who as war time premier of Great Britain directed the vast resources of that empire in the world struggle, uttered a plea before leaving this city that America cast her strength "on the side of humanity and peace" and exert the whole of her influence to put a stop to war

Viewing the scene of the Seven Days battle in 1862 before the Confederate capital, Mr Lloyd George earlier in the day expressed his admiration for the military leaders who, he declared, displayed "a skill, endurance, courage and daring never excelled and hardly equalled in history" At Malvern Hill he went on foot map in hand, to inspect the once bloody terrain and showed keen interest in other strategic points and in explanations of movements of the rival war chiefs

Accompanying the city's guest were Governor E Lee Trinkle Mayor George Ainslie, Rear Admiral Cary T Grayson, of Washington and others of his immediate party

Later in the day the former premier placed wreaths at the bases of the statues of Robert E Lee and "Stonewall" Jackson He visited the Confederate Museum, White House of the Confederacy and at Valentine Museum and Battle Abbey relics and historical portraits with absorbed attention. At the Confederate Soldiers' Home he greeted many of the grey-clad veterans

Mr Lloyd George, who was accompanied here as elsewhere by Dame Margaret and Miss Megan Lloyd George, spent a quiet evening and dined privately before going to his special train late last night

Meeting of Garden Club

A call meeting of the Executive Board and chairman of committees Garden Club was held Monday morning at the residence of Mrs. Raymond Hall, for the purpose of hearing a report from the meeting of the mid-season council of Garden Club Presidents of Virginia Federated Garden Clubs, which met in Richmond, Oct. 17.

Mrs. Charles G. Evans represent-large and enthusiastic meeting of Virginia women from all parts of the State who are leading the movement to awaken and stimulate a greater appreciation of the beauty of gardens and their spiritual value in the lives of the people.

The meeting was held at Hotel Jefferson and was conducted by Mrs. Thomas S. Wheelwright, president of the State Federation.

Plans were discussed for promoting interest in rose-test gardens by getting individual members of clubs to make test, at their homes, of various kinds of roses and the soil and location best suited to each variety.

Mrs. Rufus Heath of Norfolk, chairman of the Plant-Exchange committee explained this interesting feature i. e. the exchange of plants between clubs or individual members—something in the nature of friendship gardens, on a large scale.

The State Federation has accepted an invitation from the Danville club to meet here next May, and the event is looked forward to with great interest.

TO RELIEVE PAIN AND BACKACHE

Women May Depend upon Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Minneapolis, Minn.—"I had heard so much about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound that when I realized I needed to take something to relieve my pains and backache, and to help build me up I began to take that. I had been sick off and on for years and barely weigbed a hundred pounds, but now I have had such good results that I am recommending the Vegetable Compound to every one."—Mrs. J. J. BIEBER, 3939 18th Ave. South, Minneapolis, Minn.

Finds a True Friend

"Every woman who values her health should be proud to have a true friend like the Vegetable Compound," says Mrs. W. E. Shaw, 3227 Walnut Street, Chicago, Illinois. "I had female weakness so badly that I could not stand on my feet. Half of my time was spent in bed and I had pains in my back which were unbearable. I tried everything I could think of to help myself, and when a friend advised Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I began taking it at once. I recommend it without hesitation."

BEAUTY IS MORE THAN SKIN DEEP SAYS THIS SPECIALIST

By MARIAN HALE
(NEA Service Writer.)

NEW YORK, Oct. 30.—The more beautifying you do with your mind and body, the less you'll have to do to your face.

Take that from one of New York's prominent beauty exponents, herself a pleasure to behold and one who practices what she preaches.

She is Miss Dorothy Gray, who has just returned from a trip that corroborated her own opinions about beauty and how to attain it. She spent the summer in Vienna, investigating the modern methods of rejuvenation as practiced at the sanitarium of Dr. Steinach, the famous Viennese gland specialist.

"I hoped to learn new secrets of beauty," she told me, "but I found only practical demonstrations of the well established fact that beauty is founded on health, and that healthy people are bound to look young."

Long Life Sought.

So in Vienna, where she found hundreds of American women undergoing scientific rejuvenation, no one speaks of beauty treatments but of prolonging life.

"I found," she went on, "that few women undergo actual physical operations for youth. But they all receive electrical treatments to stimulate the vital organs, the theory of which is very old an dwas practiced by the famous French beauties of a century ago to remain youthful.

"Physicians at the sanitarium determine what elements are lacking in each woman's system and what ones should be eliminated. They prescribe a diet to promote proper elimination, proper stimulation and proper circulation. Naturally these promote health and hence beauty.

"I am convinced that all scientific beauty culture should be under a doctor's supervision."

See Doctor First.

Miss Gray has been so impressed with the injury women can do themselves, prescribing their own health cures and fads, that she has all her beauty patients consult a physician before she begins any work on their complexions.

"No woman should undertake to reduce flesh, further than cutting down portions of food and exercising more, without medical advice," she suggests. "Any system by which one loses pounds a week is bound to do harm.

"It may be the heart, or the blood, or the nerves that suffer, but something is bound to. And usually, the face and neck age years under too strenuous reduction of flesh."

I asked Miss Gray if the thought women could eliminate the use of cosmetics by the practice of common sense.

"Not exactly," she replied, "but it is an actual fact that the mort beautifying women do with their minds and bodies, the less they have to do to their faces."

Further Charges of War Frauds Made

FFurther Charges Also Heard Against Forbes—Said to Have Tried to Get Rum and Narcotics.

(By The Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, Oct. 30.—A story of how an agreement under which the government leased a hospital site at Excelsior Springs, Missouri, was rushed through by the Treasury Department in the last days of the Wilson's administration, was told by the Senate committee investigating the Veterans' Bureau. While government employes were the narrators and one fo them, Charles H. Stratton, charged that there was a last minute increase $1,300 in the rental figure originally agreed upon, authorized by Ewing La Porte, then assistant secretary of the Treasury.

In addition the committee heard some charges against Charles R. Forbes, former director of the Veterans' Bureau. James M. Williams, a Philadelphia dairyman, testified that Forbes had proposed to him the secret removal in Williams' milk trucks of large supplies of narcotics and whisky stored at the Perryville, Maryland veterans' hospital. This was in September 1922, and Williams asserted that at about the same time Forbes and a man named Bieber had sought to "embitter" Mrs. Mortimer against her husband, Elias H. Mortimer, who told a sensational story last week about his alleged relations with Forbes.

Williams also testified that the former director had sought to obtain from Mrs. Mortimer a number of papers given to her by her husband for safe keeping; that he had stated that he proposed to see that Mrs. Mortimer got the $80,000 "coming to" Mortimer in connection with government contracts and that he also stated that Mortimer was to be arrested and "sent to the penitentiary."

Conditions surrounding the lease and sale of the Excelsior Springs site to the government formed the subject matter of the committees inquiry today with E. L. Morse, again called at a witness. On taking the stand late yesterday. Morse testified that the rental figure for the site finally fixed was inserted into the agreement after his objection to smoe of the other terms.

As to the rushing through of the agreement, he said that Mr. La Porte was anxious to close the matter up as he was going out of office with the advent of the Harding administration the next day. Morse added that he wanted the matter closed because he did not care to be put to the time and trouble of going all over the negotiations again with a new assistant secretary of the Treasury.

The lease agreement was entered into by members of the Veterans Bureau was established and at the time that the Public Health Service was in charge of Veterans' hospital affairs. Morse told the committee that he has refused an offer of $75,000 for his place and that he had not cared to sell at all because it had been his home during most of his adult life. Use of the homestead as a hospital first was suggested by a committee of the American Legion, he testified.

BRAZIL WILL ERECT STATUE OF POET DIAZ IN MEXICO CITY

MEXICO CITY, Oct. 30.— Brazil will erect in Mexico City a great bronze statue of the famous Brazilian poet, Gonvalez Diaz, as a mark of esteem and affection for Mexico, according to a report to the foreign office by the Mexican ambassador at Rio de Janeiro. The ambassador adds that the necessary funds have already been voted and that the Brazilian government was prompted to the act yb the presentation during the Centennial at Rio of an heroic figure of Cuauhtemoc, the last Azetc emperor, to Brazil by the Mexican government.

Danville Rotarians are planning a novel Hallowe'en supper at the Country Club at seven o'clock tonight. This will be ladie' night and a programme has been prepared by Gilmour Holland in collabortion with "Uncle" Watkins. About 115 persons are expected to take part in the evening's entertainment and to enjoy the stunts.

The Tangle

An Intimate Story of Innermost Emotions Revealed In Private Letters.

LETTER FROM LESLIE PRESCOTT TO LESLIE PRESCOTT CONTINUED

Here I am, little Marquise, talking to you entirely of my disappointments in some phases of John's character when I started to tell you about meeting Sydney Carton again. Meeting Sydney Carton, however, was a part of this surprising knowledge that I really did not know John, and that here was a man who knew him better than himself, who possibly did not always approve of him but who accepted him just as he was as a friend whom he would help and care for even when he knew he was being used by John to further his own end.

After Jack hung up the telephone he turned to me and said, "At last, Leslie, old Syd has come to see us and he has invited us to dine with him and go to a show tonight."

"Why didn't you invite him out here, Jack?" I asked.

"Simply because I knew that if you two old introspective philosophers got together you would go mooning around among ideas that would be hard for me to follow—that I would not want to fllow if I culd. We can have a good dinner and see a good show. Syd is mighty good company when he doesn't take either you or himself too seriously. He is much like you, Leslie, in many ways.

"There must have been two entirely different egos mixed up in my cosmos. They fight all the time. I know in my heart, dearest, that old Syd and you are both much better than I and yet I feel there must have been something about me that isn't wholly unworthy, because if there was you wouldn't bother with me now, would you?"

And then, little Marquise, Jack came over and put his arms around me and pulled me close, close to him and whispered, "Dearest, I'm sorry that I was such a contemptible hound as to send you to your father for that money, but honestly you must know that I was like a rat in a hole. Oh I know that you have been particularly decent to me in not twitting me of the fact that you told me to leave Harry Ellington alone, and down deep in my heart at the time I knew you were right, however, much I might say to myself that you were narrow minded.

"Syd told me the same things, dear, and I may as well confess to you that I don't expect him to be as magnanimous as you. He is going to give me hell for going against his advice and he is going to throw in my face the fact that whenever I did take his advice I came out all right.

"Why, if I had taken Syd's advice before we were married, it would have saved me a lot of trouble at the time and ever since."

Jack caught his breath when he said this, little Marquise, and quickly changed the subject as though he were afraid that I would ask him some question that he didn't want to answer.

Hallowe'en Parties At Y. M. C. A. Today

Today is the day before Hallowe'en according to the calendar but it will seem like Hallowe'en itself to the boys of the Danville Y. M. C. A. This is because of the annual Y. M. C. A. Hallowe'en parties which are to be held today.

At 3 o'clock this afternoon the party for the Juniors will be held, and at 8 o'clock tonight one for the Employed Boys.

Oscar Hyler, boys' work secretary, and Geo. N. Savage, physical director, have arrangements all completed for a jolly good time. The large class room on the second floor of the Y. M. C. A. has been attractively decorated and a snappy program of games and contests has been arranged.

Last but not least in the estimation of the boys will be the light refreshments. All indications point to a large attendance at both parties.

P. O. DEPARTMENT TO RELEASE COOK WHO WAS "RAZED"

By GEORGE H. MANNING

WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 29—Henry L. Cook, Postmaster at West Point, Virginia, who wearied of being "razzed" by the patrons of the office who, because they did not like him kept him busy day and night delivering special delivery letters all around the country-side in his buggy, is to be released by the postoffice department from his onerous duties.

The department has appointed French A. Taylor as Acting Postmaster at West Point to take the place of Cook until a regular appointment can be made following the examination of applicants. About a week ago, after Postmaster Cook had written to Washington submitting his resignation and asking for hasty relief, the Postoffice Department asked the civil service commission to conduct an examination of candidates for the office. The examination will probably be held in December.

About two months ago a number of patrons of the office bought all the special delivery stamps they could obtain and flooded the West Point office with special delivery letters. Postmater Cook did a happy Marathon for several days making deliveries Then word reached him that Richmond Blank had put up the job on him and hunted up Blank and slugged him in the jaw

The pot boiled hotter and hotter and in a little while Postmaster Cook "threw up the sponge."

KEITH IS SUED BY ORPHEUM, INC.

NEW YORK, Oct. 29—Alleging a monopoly in restraint of trade, a suit to collect $10,050,000 damages from the B. F. Keith Vaudeville Exchange, the Orpheum Circuit, Inc., and eleven officials of these corporations, was filed in federal court today by Shuberts' Advanced Vaudeville, Inc.

It was alleged by the Shuberts that the defendants had "maliciously and wrongfully conspired to crush them by preventing vaudeville entertainers from appearing on the Shubert circuit."

The Shuberts, the B. F. Keith and Orpheum Circuits practically control all the high class vaudeville theatres in the United States and Canada

The defendants according to the complaint have terrorize performers into doing their bidding. If actors refuse to obey the "Vaudeville trust," the complaint alleges that the defendants blacklist them and refuse to permit them to play in their circuit.

CONSIDER FRENCH REPLY

(By The Associated Press)

LONDON, Oct. 29—A special cabinet council was held this afternoon at which time consideration was given to the French reply to Great Britain's invitation for participation in a conference on German capacity for the payment of reparations It is understood, however, that the cabinet decided to await the views of Washington on M Poincare's Sampigny speech and French reservations before taking any new step in the direction of convening the conference

It was the general view of the ministers that everything possible should be done to prevent the break down of the present pourparlers and to get the conference goin- no matter how limited its scope.

PRINT THIS ABOUT Joint-Ease Says Druggist

"Joint Ease" is selling like hot cakes in my store because it is a wonderful and speedy remedy for all joint troubles

'But why not impress on tens of thousands of suffering people some of the things that dozens of my customers tell me almost daily.

'Some say that it knocks out lumbago over night—others assert that for chest colds and sore throat it has no equal, while many insist that there is nothing they ever tried that is so efficient for neuralgia, neuritis and even head colds and nasal catarrh."

Answering the above letter, we, the makers of Joint Ease, know that what this thriving New Jersey druggist says is true, but we still maintain that Joint Ease is prepared for stiff, inflamed, painful swollen joints, whether in ankle, knee, hip, elbow, shoulder fingers or spine.

You'll like to use stainless Joint Ease, for with just one minute's rubbing, it soaks in through the flesh direct to the ailing bones and ligaments—that's why it succeeds—for when Joint Ease gets in joint agony gets out—and without any waste of time all swelling and congestion disappears.—All druggists.—adv.

AN HOUR OF PLAY WITTH A TWO-MILLION-DOLLAR BABY

By MAURICE HENLE

NEW YORK, Oct 29 — This is the story of a devotion existing between two tiny sisters, the like of which you've never heard before. It's about Baby Peggy, of movie fame, and her wonderful little pal and sister, Louise.

They came to New York with their father and mother and it was at the Biltmore Hotel that I met and played with them

Introductions hardly had died away before Peggy was seated on our lap, and Louise snuggly on the divan by our side Each was trying to explain the good points of her doll Each was admiring the doll of the other

'Aren't they wonderful?" asked Peggy.

"Aren't they wonderful?" asked Louise

"Wait," cried Peggy, "our dollies have rattles and more nice clothes. Wait till I get them"

"Yes," cried Louise let me help you. And our little trunks, too. Let's show them to him"

And so the $2,000,00- bundle of loveliness scampered to the floor and fled delightedly into the adjoining room, with her scarcely a step behind.

And they were wonderful the rattle, the trunks and the baby clothes.

"Mine's named Ruth," volunteered Louise

'I haven't named mine,' said Peggy

'Call her Dorothy,' suggested Louise eagerly. "That's a nice name"

"All right," determined Peggy seriously, she is named Dorothy"

That's the way it has always been," interposed Jack Montgomery the daddy, and his wife. "Always sharing their things Never a sign of envy No jealousy."

"They received those dollies last night," Montgomery said "Had there been one, instead of two, and had it been given Peggy, she immediately would have thanked the donor and asked permission to give it to Louise And the same would have been true had it been given Louise"

Louise is seven Peggy is in New York to celebrate her fifth birthday And so Louise, of course, is further with her studies and her music and dancing.

But everything she learns at dancing school Louise teaches to Peggy Peggy takes as much interest in Louise's studies as Louise does herself. At the piano Louise is very far advanced for her age and the little tot takes painstaking efforts to communicate the knowledge she has learned to her younger sister.

Recently their dad bought them a typewriter That gave the child movie star the idea she wanted to be a stenographer when she grew up She kept the ambition close to her hart for a long time, but recently has shown a desire to stay in the movies and progress as she grows older.

"Let me draw you a picture of Louise'" asked Peggy. And after we had admired the finished product, she suggested that Louise now draw one of her.

"She can draw much better than I can," the dark-haired Peggy said seriously.

"Oh, no' I can't" said Louise Peggy draws fine."

Two years ago Baby Peggy was unknown Today she is rated the highest-salaried movie child on the screen. Sister Louise, is more or less unknown. Two years hence? We hesitate to make a prediction, because Louise, light-haired, blue-eyed devoted Louise is as cute, as loving as her famous sister and all the world knows how much that is.

Montgomery was a ranger in government service Two winters ago he decided that it would be better for his wife if he went to a more civilized and populated community.

So they journeyed to Needles, Cal No thought of trying to get Peggy in the movies entered their heads. On the main street of Needles they met by chance a stranger, a grandmotherly sort of woman. She instantly became attached to Peggy and asked why the father and mother didn't proceed to Los Angeles and enter Peggy in the silent drama.

On reaching Hollywood they found thousands of children trying for the same thing, and they grew discouraged. One day Mrs Montgomery went with an actress to a casting studio The friend wanted to 'register' The casting director say Peggy and asked if she were registered.

No, she wasn't. Amused, the mother placed the child's name on the roster of those seeking jobs to act That was on a Wednesday. On Friday she received a "call," and—you know the rest.

Today she is signed to a contract calling for five pictures Those five pictures, according to the father, will net the baby star a cool two million That's a higher rate of pay than is received by any other child actor. Yes, including Jackie Coogan. Peggy's playmate

BLACKS RATHER STAY SUBJECTS OF WHITE MEN

BY FLOYD GIBBONS

(By Chicago Tribune Service)

FREETOW, SIERRA LEONE, Oct. 29—There are people in the world who do not want to be free. There are more than 1,000,000 of them, and the country they live in is almost as large as Ireland.

They have nothing to say about making laws or the enforcement of them. They have taxation without representation and they live next door to a republic—Liberia.

They are negroes, and they have been ruled for more than 200 years by white kings The country they live in is on the west coast of Africa, just north of the equator, and twenty days by steamer from New York.

Among them are educated negroes, college graduates, both men and women, who are lawyers, doctors, judges, engineers, preachers, and editors of five weekly newspapers. Among them also are Christians, Mussulmen, hundreds of thousands of plain pagans, and devil worshippers, with a sprinkling of cannibals

"We do not wish to be independent," the black editor of one of Freetown's newspapers told me. "We know enough to know we cannot govern ourselves now, and we are thankful for the progress we have made and the benefits we have received under white rule.

"We are happy, yes, but not entirely satisfied. There are many things we want, but independence is not among them."

One week in Freetown and a slight study of its history, coupled with a number of conversations with various classes in the population, has convinced me that the negroes of Sierra Leone have more confidence in the white men than they have in themselves, and I believe with reason that were it not for the presence of whites the tribal wars and savagery of the jungles would return.

These black subjects in Sierra Leone are not in sympathy with the political independence program of Marcus Garvey and American promoters of the universal improvement association. Educated blacks in this British colony are not backward in stating their apparently genuine and sincere belief that the vast majority of negroes in Africa are nowhere nearly ready for self government, and further, that any withdrawal or overthrow of the white administration of affairs would plunge the continent back into its original darkness.

COUNTRY LOOKS TO U. S. BANKERS SAYS COOLIDGE

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Oct. 29—President Coolidge told a group of investment bankers today that the country looked to them to weed out "those engaged in the banking business who do not reach a high standard of nobility and honesty"

Addressing the bankers, who are to attend the annual convention of the Investment Bankers' Association of America, from the South portico of the White House, the president said it was "almost impossible to weed out every undesirable element but the country has come to know that it can rely upon the representation made by its investment bankers."

"More than that," he added, "here is an additional service you can render, the country is coming to realize it must depend upon your assistance and help to weed out thoose who are not desirable by reason of not maintaining a high standard of ability and honesty"

Speakers at the first day sessions of the convention declared that business conditions were good, were on a stable basis, and gave every indication of leading to a still better situation Among them was Secretary Wallace, of the agriculture department, who outlined the federal government's program of aiding the states in constructing and maintaining good roads. Commenting briefly on agricultural conditions, he said that if theye continued to improve as they have during the last year, there shortly would be "no agricultural problems."

MILITARY KEEPS POPULACE QUIET

BY VINCENT SHEEAN.

(By Chicago Tribune Service)

DUSSELDORF, Oct. 29.—A formidable military demonstration throughout the Ruhr by the French today, with machine guns trailing them, at likely trouble centers, with cavalry patrolling the streets, kept the populace relatively quiet.

Nevertheless, food rioting continued all day at Bochum, Essen, Mulheim, Elberfeld and Recklinghausen and the feverish unrest of the crowd is steadily increasing.

The industrialists are frightened with the exhibition of the communist feeling at Bochum and are hastening negotiations with the French for a general resumption of activities in the Ruhr valley.

According to French sources here an agreement between the Stinnes and Klockner group, as well as the Hubert Dertmunder Union and the Reich group is now practically concluded. Dr. Zeigner of the Dertmunder Union is negotiating in the name of his group and Herr Stinnes is consulting with Chancellor Stresemann in Berlin.

The Krupp establishment is to benefit by a special arrangement with the French regarding a resumption of work, although Fritz Homann, administrator of the Krupp works in Essen, denied that such a contract was signed yesterday.

Bochum and Essen present the most dangerous situation the French are facing here. Bochum has between 60,000 and 70,000 unemployed. The number will be doubled tomorrow if the industrialists carry out their decision to shut all factories and mines.

French machine guns were trained upon a mob pillaging coal in the Gustave Victoria mine in Bochum today, temporarily ending the trouble after blue police had gravely wounded ten among the mob.

However, despite the French declaration that the industrialists are hurrying negotiations to resume work, a majority of the Ruhr magnates continued closing their shops Thus, the number of unemployed in Bochum and Essen alone will be increased by 150,000 unless an agreement intervenes

Duisberg, formerly the heart of the Ruhr and Rhineland transportation system again was the scene of grave disorders today, aggravated by the fact that the Separatist shock troops who now control the town are an undisciplined rabble who are pillaging on their own hook. The maintenance of order falls upon the Belgian troops, who have filled the streets with bayonets and machine guns Not a factory or mine in all the Duisberk area is working. The hungry mobs must pillage or starve. In the entire Ruhr no city presents a more complete picture of desolation than Duisberg, with its enormous railway yards and network of nine great canals lying deserted under a drizzling rain.

The pillagers take refuge in this wilderness of rust and unused freight trains, defying the efforts of the Belgian police and separatists to find them.

The separatist movement is at a complete standstill in the Northern Rhineland The shock troops still hold Crefeld, where they have more than 3,000 heavily armed former soldiers.

They also hold Duisberg, but there the separatists obviously are backed up by Belgian bayonets.

Dusseldorf expects a separatist attack any night.

The French last night formally turned over the city building to disarmed blue police with orders not to defend themselves if attacked. The French also have reduced the blue police to 200 men only. The rumble of French armored cars and the clatter of cavalry hoofs is expected to be sufficient to keep the population indoors The inhabitants are forbidden to leave their houses between 8 a m and 6 a. m. An attack is expected during these hours.

FRENCH FORBID LOYALTY WRIT

(By The Associated Press)

MAYENCE, Oct. 29—The French authorities today forbade publication of a proclamation of loyalty to the German Reich, prepared by all the old political parties here, which was to have appeared in the newspapers today. Instead of this the papers published in a most prominent position, by order of the French authorities, the loyalist allege, a proclamation on behalf of the Separatists' "government" denouncing communism and extolling the merits of the new republic. The proclamation was signed by "the government of the province of Rhein-Hesse"

The loyalists unable to use the medium of the press, posted placards bearing their proclamation throughout the city but these were quickly torn down and the unposted cards confiscated and destroyed. All the stores are closed. A Curfew law has been put into effect, clearing the streets at 6 p. m

ARRAIGN MAYOR FOR VIOLATION VOLSTEAD ACT

(By Chicago Tribune Service)

NEW YORK, Oct. 29—Among alleged violators of the Volstead Act arraigned today before United States Commissioner Hitchcock and held for trial was John C. Cadin, the mayor of Cliffside, N. J. The comrevenue agent Gottman.

enue agent Gottman.

The government officer said that at a late hour last night he happened to be passing Trinity Place and Thames street and saw three men taking two boxes from a touring car standing in front of a building on the corner. He found the boxes were cases of whiskey.

The three men, who were promptly arretsed by Gottman, proved to be Cadin, Pasquale Apice and Albert Herr, all of Cliffside. They spent the rest of the night in Old Slip police station. Attached to the car was the great seal of the Community of Cliffside. The car was seized as well as the liquor and the Cliffside visitors were held in $500 each.

Mayor Cadin said his office is honorary and carries no stipend.

Makes a Family Supply of Cough Remedy

Really better than ready-made cough syrups, and saves about $5. Easily and quickly prepared.

If you combined the curative properties of every known "ready-made" cough remedy, you probably could not get as much real curative power as there is in this simple home-made cough syrup, which is easily prepared in a few minutes.

Get from any druggist 2½ ounces of Pinex, pour it into a pint bottle and fill the bottle with syrup, using either plain granulated sugar syrup, clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup, as desired. The result is a full pint of really better cough syrup than you could buy ready-made for three times the money. Tastes pleasant and never spoils.

This Pinex and Syrup preparation gets right at the cause of a cough and gives almost immediate relief. It loosens the phlegm, stops the nasty throat tickle and heals the sore, irritated membranes so gently and easily that it is really astonishing.

A day's use will usually overcome the ordinary cough and for bronchitis, croup, hoarseness and bronchial asthma, there is nothing better.

Pinex is a most valuable concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, and has been used for generations to break up severe coughs.

To avoid disappointment, ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with full directions, and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded. The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

That Terrible Fear of Getting Fat!

IT is discouraging to see the scales record more weight every week, but it's also possible to reduce—and without "taking the joy out of life," too.

Make these light popovers and this tasty pudding, yourself, so that you will be sure to have only a small number of calories. These foods are delicious—but not fattening.

These tempting foods will help you reduce:

Popovers

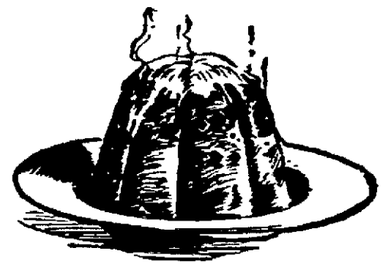

1 c. flour — 1 egg
½ ts. salt — 1 c. milk
2 ts. Davis Baking Powder

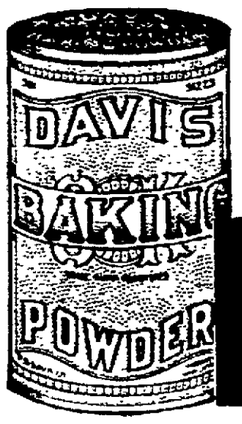

Sift salt, flour and Davis Baking Powder into bowl. Beat egg and add milk to it; stir gradually into flour mixture, making a smooth batter. Beat with Dover Beater until full of bubbles. Fill hot greased muffin pans ⅔ full and bake in very hot oven 30 to 40 minutes or until full and brown.

Bran Steamed Pudding

1 c. bran — 1 c. skimmed milk
1 c. whole wheat flour — ½ c. corn syrup
2 ts. Davis Baking Powder — 1 tb. melted fat
½ ts. salt — 1 c. chopped apples

Mix in order given, turn into buttered moulds, steam 1 hour, serve with a lemon sauce. (Spices may be added to the recipe if desired.)

LEGISLATION FOR THE NEXT CONGRESS

Plans for legislation in the next session of Congress, which may be an extra session the last of this month or early in November, are being rapidly made by the administration and congressional leaders.

The first big piece of legislation will be bills to assist the agricultural interests. It is believed this will take the form of enlarged powers for the Federal farm loan banks to make loans more frequently, on easier terms, and smaller rates of interests. Legislation may be proposed to govern co-operative selling organizations for the purpose of eliminating the middlemen.

Further regulation of railroads seems to be inevitable. It is argued that much of the farmers' troubles are due to high freight rates both on what he produces and on what he buys. This involves the question of railroad valuations and on that there will be a tremendous fight.

Another cause of complaint is high taxes practically taking all the profits in the business. It is also asserted that the tariff on agricultural products will be increased on a par with manufactured products. Agriculture is the basic industry of this nation and every effort will be made to put it on its feet.

The bonus bill will also come before the next Congress. If this should pass, as now seems possible, it will necessitate an increase in taxation, estimated at from $40 to $80 per year per family, according to the plan adopted.

The shipping situation is causing a good deal of worry, principally because private interests refuse to purchase and operate without a subsidy, and are strong enough to prevent government operation. The Shipping Board has expended more than a thousand millions of dollars, and the entire assets are now less than $300,000,000. Its a sorry exhibition of political graft and mismanagement, nad may yet be given away to get rid of it.

These are some of the important questions that will come before the next regular or extra session and fireworks aplenty are on the program.

ANDREW BONAR LAW

Bonar Law's death in London this morning following an attack of septic penumonia contracted a few days ago removes a statesman who reached the zenith of his power when his human frame was crumbling. Seven brief months as premier of Great Britain—a post which had been offered him several times within the last twenty years found him like many of the men called to high office during the Armageddon committed the physical decay which had set in visibly after the Peace Conference and he was compelled to yield the premiership because of impaired health. At no time during his brief tenure was he a man in able health, and it is perhaps for that reason that despite the critical juncture of world affairs at the time he replaced his doughty Welsh predecessor he failed to write a lasting page in history. Mr. Law was called to succeed Mr. Lloyd George because he was the only logical figure deemed fit to take his place. He had friends and a following in every party and that was the secret of his choice, together with the belief that the man who had handled the record budget of three and a half billion dollars during the war period as chancellor of the exchequer, might be reasonably expected to restore some order out of the economic chaos which faced Britain at the time of his choice. But his mental vigor was impaired. True, the sound business mind of a Scot and and the firm comprehension of the problems he confronted revealed themselves during his term of office but the vigor which made Bonar Law a redoubtable foe in the realm of political maneuvering was lacking and he waned almost perceptibly as a major force and he suffered by violent contrast with the mental agility and magnetic power of the man he succeeded.

Bonar Law will stand, however, as a great statesman discounting the seven month's premiership which fair minded people will not charge against his record because of the circumstances under which he assumed the burden—in the role of a draftee. The fact that for twenty years he was a force in British politics to be reckoned with continuously and that his many political battles left not bitterness in the hearts of his foes is proof enough of this.

THE NEGRO MIGRATION

Negro migration from the South to the North is variously accounted for, and there is difference of opinion as to the permanence of the movement. But the voluntary removal of 478,700 laborers from a dozen Southern states within the 12 months ended August 31 last is a phenomenon the significance of which should be determined. As the nearly half a million migrats are described as laborers, the inference is the count applies only to the males who have sought new fields of activity. A fair assumption is that their removal will be followed by that of hundred of thousands of females and children, if this movement has not already begun in force.

The department of labor collected the figures of negro migration and its representatives sought also to find the meaning of it. Some think it is a temporary manifestation of desire to profit from high wages in the North and that cold weather will drive most of the men "home" this winter. Others attribute it to restlessness and profess to believe that the migrants do not all go North but move from place to place in the South so that in reality the Southern states are not losing their colored populations to appreciable extent.

Never before has there been a greater disposition on the part of Northern capitalists to invest in the South. A new day has been awakening for us. An abundance of cheap labor has been one of the attractions for Northern enterprise. This will fade, though, if that labor is driven out. And the great loss will fall on the South; which has no greater need than industrial development. Beginnings have been made on a large scale. They will come to an end if the conditions that have attracted are permitted to vanish. The South cannot afford to view with complacence the departure of its negro laborers. The fundamental cause of their removing in such large numbers should be ascertained and remedies applied. Unless this be done the development of the South will be retarded many years.

YOUR HEALTH

By Dr. Clifford C. Robinson

DANDRUFF

Treatment of the scalp for danruff and preventing the loss of hair is a most important part of your health program.

It is just as foolish to rub a bald head with hair tonic and expect hair to grow, as it would be to rub the tonic on an egg and expect it to sprout feathers. The time to prevent dandruff and baldness is when you have hair and not when you haven't.

If you have a tendency to thin skin on your scalp, you will have your troubles keeping baldness away. Thin skin, rather tight over the head, does not permit of a free circulation to nourish the scalp and the hair roots. If your scalp is thick and moves rather freely over the skull bones, your hair will probably stick by you to the last.

Now for the treatment: The two chief aids are cleanliness and scalp massage. A third may be added for good results, brushing the hair. Any good toilet soap or green soap with a little alcohol added will prove effective as a shampoo.

If you insist on a preparatino try this one: In one-half pint use 50 parts soft soap, two parts oil of lavender, and 33 parts alcohol.

Massage must be started in early youth, and kept up through your whole life. It is by far the greatest agent to preserve the hair. Use the finger tips to massage the scalp, night and morning.

Brushing should be carried out in a careful and systematic manner. It should be done at night and in the morning. Some other during the day will also prove beneficial. Brush until you feel your scalp warm under the brush movements. It helps to remove the dandruff and stimulates the scalp and hair roots.

Shaving the head or frequent cutting does not help the growth of the hair.

HERR SCHULZE APPOINTED COMMISSIONER FOR SAXONY

(By The Associated Press.)

BERLIN, Oct. 29.—Herr Schulze, former chief of the Saxon currency, has been appointed Reich commissioner for Saxony, says the Lokal Anzeiger.

The appointment was made in consequence of the Saxon ministers decision to disregard Chancellor Stresemann's ultimatum demanding its resignation.

The commissioner, or civil governor, will administer the civil affairs of the State until a parliamentary government acceptable to Berlin takes the place of the communist-socialist ministry that has defied President Ebert and Chancellor Teressemann

Scoop's Colyum

DRAKES BRANCH, October 30.—(Grapevine Wireless.) — Something ought to be done to save our livery stables. Must this institution pass away, along with that breed of men who knew the moods and whims of a horse, his weaknesses and his nobler parts, as the motorist of today knows the temper of a Tin Lizzy? It is sad. To the old-timer it is unbelievable. The average country town has no livery stable any more. Instead are roosting places for automobiles without any hay loft for the hens to lay in, where steel clangs on steel and the heart is chilled.

To the boy of yesterday the livery stable was the next step after the swimming hole. It was a mark of distinction to be admitted there. Imagine any back alley in any little town with a livery stable half way up the block behind a row of stores in front. Deep wheel runs ran into the alley from either direction, converging in a worn track between two cedar posts at the mouth. These posts were scarred just at the height of a wheel hub, where bungling drivers had turned too close. It was a skillful trick to drive so near that there was not room for a sheet of paper between the hub and post, then to go careening up the alley and into the stable door at full tilt.

About that door there was always gathered a group such as no garage ever will be able to reproduce. First in importance was Colonel Smiley, seated in an armchair a little to one side of the entrance. He was a tall old man, six feet or better, with a lantern jaw, white imperial and mustache, a head of gray hair and a pair of gray eyes to match—eyes which knew men and horses well and quelled either when need demanded. He was a man of reputation, sometimes with three or four notches on his gun, and always a veteran of the Civil War.

Oh, save this relic of our hallycorn youth!

Origin.

The word "news" is believed by many persons to be composed of the letters that designate the four quarters of the compass. North, East, West and South give us N-E-W-S from their initials.

While this supposed origin of the word has no scientific support, it is a pretty fancy and is carried out in fact. News does come from all directions and just as a weather vane shifts and turns with every change in the wind's direction so does the public taste for reading point always in the direction from which the strongest currents come.

TOO PRETTY TO BE MARRIED SHE SEEKS DIVORCE

CHICAGO. Oct. 29.—Mrs. Carl Lees, after carefully consulting her mirror and listening to numerous admirers, has decided she is too beautiful for matrimony, but should devote her beauty and talents to a stage career. Wherefore she asks the court to annual her marriage to Carl Lees and to protect her from him and her former husband, Harry Stober.

In her bill she says her first husband was insanely jealous and so cruel she divorced him. Lees was one of her admirers at the time and he immediately began pursuing her. He followed her to Los Angeles, she avers, and at the point of a pistol, forced her to marry him. She says this marriage was illegal, as she had not been divorced from Stober the required year.

She is willing to be admired by men but it must be enmasse and from her safety vantage on the stage.

The REFEREE

By ALBERT APPLE

MYSTERY

We are guided by mysterious forces. One of these is revealed by the government report that, since the war, there has been a decided increase in the number of boy babies born, as compared with the smaller number of girl babies.

This tendency has been noticed in England as well as America. It supports an ancient theory that wars and epidemics are followed by increases in births of males. Behold nature, replacing the soldiers killed in battle.

WOMEN

More boy babies born than girl babies, reports Journal of American Medical Association. But still correct is the popular notion that there are more women than men in the world. This contradictory state of affairs is due to the death rate being higher among boys than girls. The boys have a better start, in numbers, but death before maturity reverses the situation.

For every 13 infants born alive, one dies within a year.

INDECENT

Indecency on the stage is increasing, claims a New York official of the Society for the Suppression of Vice.

If so, it mirrors the condition of part of the public that attends theaters. People betray their real natures in the amusements they seek with full previous knowledge of the nature of the amusement. Occasionally they get worse than they bargained for, but you don't notice many leaving the theater as a protest against the objectionable.

SPEED

A new system of rapid writing is being adopted by many business firms. It's called "Brief English" by Emma B. Dearborn, who invented it. The idea seems to be to write things as they sound when spoken quickly. For instance, "Suitor held for murder" would be written: "Sutr ld fr mdr."

The penalty of all kinds of fast thinking. Few rapid thinkers are thorough or accurate.

LIQUOR

Lloyd George (in his latest book, "Where Are We Going?") comments: "America treats prohibition as one of its greatest moral triumphs. Britain treats it as a joke. Temperaance reformers here are therefore watching the progress of America's bid for sobriety with hopeful, if anxious, eyes and with longing hearts. What Britain does next will depend entirely on the success or failure of what America is doing now."

If prohibition eventually "works," the historian of a few thousand years from now may have trouble determining whether it or the World War had the greater effect on humanity in the long run. Prohibition is a world war itself.

SLEEP

A child of 4 requires 12 hours' sleep. Ages 5 to 7 need 11 to 12 hours. Ages 8 to 11 need 10 to 11 hours. Ages 12 to 14 need nine to 10 hours. These figures are quoted in a government circular dealing with children's health.

It a child isn't gaining weight or doing well in school, the reason often is insufficient sleep. Incidentally, the stupidity or dullness of many grown-ups is merely a reflection of cellular exhaustion resulting from not enough sleep.

"THE FOOL"

BY CHANNING POLLOCK

ILLUSTRATED BY R.W. SAWYERFIELD

BEGIN HERE TODAY

Dilly Gilliam, her mother, Mrs. Gilliam, with Lelia Thornbury, a divorcee, are trimming a Christmas tree in the Church of the Nativity, a fashionable church of New York. Mrs. J. Orson Tice, society leader, comes in with Jerry Goodkind, a man-about-town, who is interested in Clare Jewett, engaged to the Reverend Daniel Gilchrist, the assistant rector of the church, in bad favor because of his radical sermons.

Dr. Wadham, the rector, drops in to attend a meeting of the wardens. Jerry proposes marriage to Clare. Clare has a talk with Daniel and accuses him of being too radical.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

"I want to be happy."

"That's exactly what I want," he agreed happily.

"How can anybody be happy without money?" she asked gravely.

"How can anybody be happy with it?" he returned. "Anyway, do you think people are? Happier than people who have just enough?"

"In our day and age," Clare defended, "there's nothing worse than poverty. There's nothing more degrading than having to scrimp and save, and do without and keep up appearances. I've tried it—ever since my father died—and I know. I can't do it any longer and I won't."

"Clare!" It was a mood new to him. His exclamation startled her and she turned away. In a moment she was calmer.

"I don't want to quarrel with you, Dan," she said gently. "I just want you to be sensible. I love you, but love the good things of life, too. I like to be warm and comfortable."

"You can be sure of that," he promised.

"But that's only the beginning," she pursued. "I want good clothes, and furs, and my car, and money to spend when I like. I want my own house, and my own servants, and a husband who amounts to something. I'm no different from other women of my class."

"I hoped you were," he admitted, half to himself.

"A year or two ago people thought you were going to be a bishop. Today you've made an enemy of every influential man in the church. All that may be very noble, but I'm not noble and I don't pretend to be. I don't feel any call to sacrifice myself for others, and I don't think you have any right to ask it."

"I do ask it, Clare," he insisted.

"You mean you're going on like this?" They were standing now and facing each other, she with an air of defiance, he with the calm resolution of conviction.

"I mean I can't give you expensive clothes, and servants, and a big house, while all about us people are hungry."

"What do you propose to give me?" she inquired rather scornfully.

"A chance to help," he answered.

She turned on him, looking sharply at him.

"I can't believe you're serious," she gasped. "You've always been a dreamer, but I can't believe you're going through with this fantastic nonsense!"

He was still calm. Perhaps it was this strange control of which she was not capable that added to Clare's irritation.

"I've chosen a narrow path, dear," he said, "but I hoped it might be wide enough for us both."

"It isn't," she returned, finality in her tone. "With your means and opportunities, you're offering me what any bank clerk would give his wife. I thought you loved me, but you're utterly selfish, and I think, a little mad. You've a right to throw away your own life, but you've no right to throw away mine."

He lifted a hand in protest, but it was too late. She moved toward him, fumbling with her hands. By the time she had reached his side she had taken off her ring. She handed it to him with an impatient gesture. He paused a moment, then accepted it in mute abnegation.

"Our engagement is off!" she declared metallically.

CHAPTER VII

A Friend in Need

CLARE paused a moment, expectant. It seemed incredible that he would let her go that way. Surely he would say something. Surely he would see that he was wrong.

She waited for his surrender. Gilchrist was silent. He stood staring at the ring which lay in the palm of his hand, shorn of its symbolism.

She turned, expecting that his hand would reach out to halt her. He did not move. Slowly she made her way toward the door. She paused a moment with her hand on the knob, waiting for his footsteps behind her. The sombre silence of the church seemed like a deafening roar in her ears.

She could not see Gilchrist's face. There was no answer in his attitude. She took a step forward, but still he did not move. Then she walked slowly to his side.

"Don't you think you're making a terrible mistake?" she asked.

He looked up from the ring. His answer was in his eyes, and she read it there. But he repeated it.

"No," he said simply.

Clare lifted her head with a defiance that was characteristic of her other self. This time there was no hesitancy in her step. She strode to the door with resolution. Without looking back she opened it. Four numbers tingled in her brain. "Poverty—six—nine—four—two." No, that wasn't the exchange. How idiotic! It was "Rhinelander." She did not stop to close the door.

Gilchrist looked after her. He waited until the outer door had echoed her departure, then walked slowly over and closed the door. Quietly he placed the ring in his pocket.

An organ began to play softly in the choir room. Its tremulous notes echoed through the vast emptiness of the church.

The solitude of it all seemed to comfort him. He felt a companionship in it. There were not even shadows now. He and the darkness were alone. There was solace from the silence in the quiet music of the organ.

He crossed to the altar and stood looking up at the benign forms outlined in the painted windows. How far away they seemed! And yet how real! The Shepherd in the center—

He turned suddenly at the sound of a step. The church was wrapped completely in a darkness which his eyes could not penetrate.

Again came the step.

"Who's there?" Gilchrist inquired of the obscurity. An echo repeated the question mechanically, losing the tone of solicitude that was in Gilchrist's voice.

There was no answer, but Gilchrist sensed a presence.

"Are you looking for some one?" he asked again.

"Yes," came a voice. Gilchrist peered into the darkness.

"I'm the assistant rector, Mr. Gilchrist," he explained without raising his voice.

"I know you, Mr. Gilchrist," came the voice.

A sense of recognition came to Gilchrist. His air of inquiry disappeared.

"Oh, yes, I remember," he said. "You're the man who was cold. Can I do anything for you?"

"I think you can," said the man.

Gilchrist had made out the form now, in outline near the door.

"Tell me," he asked sympathetically.

"Perhaps I can help you, too," parried the man.

Gilchrist remembered now. It was he who needed help. The irony of it all came to him. Here was he offering aid to another when he himself was needy—needy of comfort, of sympathy.

"My poor man," he said, "I wish you could." He clasped his hands. The remembrance of his despair impelled him to confide, even in this vague figure. "I was so sure of what I wanted to do," he said, "and now I begin to wonder whether it can be done."

It seemed as though he were alone again—alone with the darkness and the silence.

"It has been done," the man assured him.

"But in this day—in this practical world—can any man follow the Master?" Daniel put the question haltingly.

The answer came back positively.

"Why not? Is this day different from any other? Was the world never practical before? Is this the first time of conflict between flesh and spirit? If it could be done then, why not now, and, if it was ever worth the doing, why not now?"

"But how?" It was Daniel who had turned seeker.

"We have been told before," reminded the man.

Gilchrist thought back over pages.

"Take no thought for the morrow—" he read there. "Sell whatsoever thou hast, and give to the poor—Love thy neighbor as thyself—Bless them that curse you, do good to them that hate you. But if a man did those things today people would think him mad?"

"What does it matter?" asked the man, simply.

"He would lose everything!" said Gilchrist anxiously.

"And gain everything," was the answer.

"What good could one man do?"

"Why don't you try?" challenged the voice.

"The Master tried, and they crucified Him." Gilchrist murmured. He was trembling now.

"Did they?" queried the man incredulously. "And if they did, what does that matter? Is a man dead whose ideal lives? 'Ye crucified me, but I am with ye always, even unto the end of the world.'"

Gilchrist stepped forward. His keen, eager eyes searched for the face of this form in the shadows.

"In God's name, who are you?" he asked intensely.

The man straightened.

"I am a Jew," he said, simply.

Class and club activities with a touchof Halloween joyousness have made the week one of teeming interest at the Y. W. C. A. Some days it has been difficult to know where the many groups, all with some definite plan, could be placed so that their program might be satisfactorily carried out.

Girl Reserve Corps

The Girl Reserve department, the newest development of the Y. W. C. A. program, is growing rapidly It is daily evident how great the need has been in the community for constructive planning among the teen age girls, whether they are in grade school, high school or young employed. The freshman luncheon during the week brought together a large group of girls in the freshman and sophmore years at high school. Miss Annie James, advisor of this group, is stimulating much interest in the Girl Reserve movement. Miss James was the leader of the Girl Reserve conference group attending Sweet Briar conference last summer, and returned to Danville enthusiastic over the possibilities of developing the plan in Danville The senior high school corps held a cabinet meeting a few days ago The young employed group from McCrory's store, in phantom attire, acted as waitresses for the Lion's supper on Wednesday evening, carrying out the Halloween idea planned by the hostess, Mrs. E N. Z Ellis and her committee. Saturday afternoon was the gayest of the week, for the grade school girls of twelve years and over came for a merry Halloween party. The gymnasium was decorated most attractively for the occasion and 125 girls from the grade schools came to enjoy the liveliest of times. Mrs. John Page Jones, a member of the Girl Reserve committee, and Mary Clark of the senior high school Girl Reserve Corps assisted Miss Martha Andrew in entertaining the large number of guests The girls were in costume and many of the costumes were clever in the extreme. The McMcory Girl Reserves are planning a Holloween party for Tuesday evening. Elsie Townsend, the president of the McCrory group, has many clever ideas in the back of her head for this spooky party. The McCrory party promises to be of the merriest of the many to be given during the week.

Industrial Department

The Bpsiness Girls Council had their usual Monday supper and meeting with an encouraging attendance. The club supper idea is one growing in popularity as the weeks go by The girls find it very convenient to come from business to the "Y" where an appetizing supper awaits them, and promises to be of the merriest of the where they can meet together around a table, and too, brightly, happy faces and cheerful chatter help one to forget the cares that infest the day. The club supper ended-fresh zest seems to have been gathered for the club program. Just now every one is filled with the spirit of the season, and the first Halloween party of the week will be given by the Business Girls Council Many schemes and plans have been made to have this a rollicking good time occasion.

The Girls Industrial Club ever faithful and dependable had their usual large attendance at the Bible class on Tuesday evening The study of the Hebrew Prophets with Miss Agathe C. Daniel as the leader of the class, is proving one of helpfulness and interest.

The first of a series of talks in Current Events planned as part of the Girls Industrial Club program for the Fall, was given on Friday evening by Mr. H. E Spessard, general secretary of the School Y. M. C. A. Mr Spessard left with the girls much that could not but stimulate their thinking The thought around which Mr. Spassard built his talk was "Reading makes a full man; writing makes an exact man; conference makes a complete man."

The Girls Industrial Club will have their Halloween party on Wednesday evening Those who attend the Girls Industrial Club Halloween party last year know what these girls can do when it comes to planning good times

Y. W. C. A. Classes

The interest in the Y. W. C. A. classes this Fall has been indeed gratifying The Home Economics classes under the able direction of Mrs. Charlotte Richmond Jacobs, grow in numbers and interest with each lesson Mrs Jacobs shows how easy it really is to accomplish most difficult things in the scrence of cookery. The making of dainty light breads and luscious cakes seem but play, without great strain or effort. It is the knowing how that makes all things easy. It is to teach those willing to learn a short cut to efficient home making that makes Mrs. Jacob's classes so worth while.

The class in arts and crafts met for organization and planning on Thursday evening. Miss Permelia Gwynn of the Industrial Arts department of the public schools is instructor of this class There are still a few vacancies in the class. If there are others who care to join they will be most welcome. The next class meets on Thursday evening at seven thirty o'clock

The class in Millnery did not meet on Tuesday evening as scheduled because of weather conditions A full attendance of all who have registered for Millnery is urged for the lesson on Tuesday evening at seven thirty There are also vacancies in this class for those who would like to learn the art of hat making.

A class in French conversation is forming. It is not necessary to have a background of academics French to enter this class. Any information concerning this class or any other class offered in the Y. W. C. A, will be gladly given by the General Secretary, Mrs. Estelle J. Hinchliffe.

THREE MEN ARE KILLED BY HIGH TENSION CURRENT

(By The Associated Press.)

PARKERSBURG, W. VA., Oct. 29—Three men were killed when an iron pipe they were lowering into a well came into contact with a high tension electric wire late today. The three men, Worthy M. Johnson, Earl Coe, and Opal Lightner, were knocked to the ground and died a few minutes later.

The three victims were installing a pump at Johnson's home. Another man passing by, assisted in lowering the pipe. He was knocked to the ground but escaped injury.

The contact between the pipe and the electric wire lasted but a few moments, the pipe sliding off the wire. As the contact was broken, the men were released and were carried into the Johnson home where they died.

—Bud Foster, of Reidsville, was a visitor in town Sunday.

Poor Men's Sons More Successful Than Rich, Says Business Expert

CHARLES R. FLINT, WHO BELIEVES IN MIXING BUSINESS WITH PLAY.

By ALEXANDER HERMAN

NEW YORK, Oct. 30.— Poor me's sons have the edge on rich men's sons when it comes to succeeding in business.

That is the opinion of a man who has organized 21 large industries, who has been a fried of J. Pierpont Morgan, the de Rothschilds, most of the leading bankers of the world, and is(in a way, not only "Father of Trusts," but father of big business—Charles R. Flint, financier, sportsman and author of the "Memories of An Active Life" just published.

Edsel Will Have To Step

'Sons of poor men are unencumbered by the handicaps that come with ease," says Flint. "They are not tempted to rest on the laurels of their fathers, for there usually aren't any.

"They just go ahead on their own Their handicaps seem to sharpen them for their conflicts. Adversity seems to give them greater impetus. As a result most of the men who succeed are self-made.

"Look at Ward, the millionaire baker. When he started, his wife baked loaves of bread and he went out and peddled them. Now he sells a million dollars worth of bread a week!

"Henry Ford's rise is even more marked. He has made the greatest individual success in the history of industry. His son Edsel will have to go some to even approximate the success of his father.

"Rockefeller and Schwab started without capital. Their success has been due to superior intelligence coupled with grit born of their early struggles.

'Charles A. Coffin, humorously referred to as "The Lynn Shoemaker," is now chairman of the B[illegible] of Directors of the General Electric Company, the outstanding figure in the electrical industry of the world

'And the list is long including the names of almost everyone who has made a real success."

Flint has had plenty of opportunity to observe many of these successes. In his work he [illegible] engaged in exploits the world over.

He furnished a navy [illegible] Brazil, delivered a cruiser to J[illegible] time of war, the only time a war vessel has ever been delivered to a belligerent, [illegible] munitions to [illegible] Russia in its war with Japan [illegible] with royalty, was adviser to [illegible] and [illegible] of the largest concerns in [illegible]

W[illegible] he has kept young

[illegible]

"Here I am [illegible] the office and a thrill [illegible] in the [illegible]

[illegible] go [illegible] I go shooting or fishing.

"As a consequence [illegible] vigor and never [illegible] tions

"I have learned [illegible] —and that's [illegible] ness in business."

T. R. Envied Him

President Roosevelt [illegible] Flint for learning [illegible] art [illegible] thanking him for a fish, [illegible] said.

'To receive such a magnificent [illegible] as well as four woodcock is [illegible] to raise a very grave doubt as to whether it is really worth while being president'"

As Flint spoke, he continued packing a cartridge case.

"The best age of man is all ages," he went on. 'But for mature judgment the period between 65 and 75 is the soundest.

"For active executive work, 25 to 50 is the time.

"For creative work, the age of the fifties is the best, for real creation takes mental processes that come only after years of experience.

"But the whole span of life is too short for one to waste it merely on the accumulation of money."

STENGEL IS BASEBALL'S OFFICIAL GOAT-GETTER

In addition to hitting home runs in world series games, Casey Stengel's side line with the New York Giants has been acting as "goat-getter."

In professional circles, if the opposition has a weak spot that comes under a verbal barrage, the job is turned over to the club's "goat-getter."

Stengel has a sense of humor—sometimes it is a bit distorted. Incidentally, he has a sarcastic tongue. In the last three series, Babe Ruth has been Stengel's target. As a bench-warmer in 1921 and 1922, Stengel went big against Ruth. In the recent series, Ruth refused to be disturbed by Stengel's unkind words.

Twice last season Stengel figured in fist fights on the diamond, each time losing the decision. In a game at Philadelphia, Pitcher Weinert was making the Giants look foolish Then Stengel said something, a fist fight followed and Stengel and Weinert were chased from the game. Stengel had accomplished his purpose —the exit of Weinert.

In the all-important series with the Cincinnati Reds, in which New York took five straight and practically decided the pennant, Stengel got in his work. Luque pitched the first game Near the finish, Stengel said some things that reflected on Luque's Castilian ancestry. Another fight, in which Luque was suspended for five days and lost for the rest of the series

Stengel is a pretty fair hitter but a far better "goat-getter."

ANGEL FIRPO IS NO LONGER HERO IN NATIVE LAND

(By The Associated Press.)

NEW YORK, Oct 29.—Louis Angel Firpo, the Argentine heavyweight, no longer is a national hero in his own country according to Horatio P Mendonza an Argentine business man who arrived today on the Pan-American He said the projected popular reception in his honor had been abandoned

The heavyweight's step in taking out first naturalization papers in the United States, although later trying to cancel them, had caused a feeling of resentment throughout Argentina Mr Mendonza said

MAYS IS DONE

NEW YORK, Oct 30.— Pitcher Carl Mays once star pitcher of the New York Yankees the player who [illegible] the American League is certain to pass from the ranks of that organization before the opening of next season The fat contract that Mays had with the club ran out at the close of the 1923 season. In all probability he will be used as trading material. Loss of his fast ball the most deceptive feature of his pitching was the cause of his lack of effectiveness this year

LONDON, Oct 29—A note from the government of the Reich dismissing the cabinet of Saxony from office was handed to the cabinet today and the members of the ministry submitted to the dismissal says a Central News dispatch from Berlin.

Zev Will Race With My Own On Next Saturday

(By The Associated Press.)

NEW YORK, Oct. 30.— Having witnessed the crowning of two thoroughbred champions—Zev in the international three-year-old race with Papyrus and Sarazen, in a match with his two-year-old rival, Happy Thoughts— eastern turf enthusiasts are turning their eyes toward Latonia where Zev is slated to match strides in the $50,000 championship next Saturday with My Own, Rear Admiral Cary T Grayson's sterling colt.

My Own, was a rival of Zev's forsection as America's entry in the $100,000 cotest with the English derby winner at Belmont Park. They have never met but, barring unforseen developments in the race, the championship is expected to have an important, if not decisive bearing on their rival claims to American three-year-old honors for the year

The distance, one mile and three quarters, is declared by My Own partisans to be especially favorable to that thoroughbred, for Grayson's entry has proved a consistently good distance performer. Zev, however, demonstrated conclusively his staying qualities in the mile and a half test with Papyrus.

Turfmen point out that inasmuch as the championship is not a match race, much will depend upon the whether Zev and My Own are able to race on an even footing in the face of opposition from the rest of the field. Should one of the other lose after being handicaped, either at the barrier or in the running, the test would be inconclusive.

Among rivals of Zev and My Own in the race may the Greentree stables "Rialto," which captured the $25,000 Washington handicap at Laurel Saturday.

Meanwhile, the two-year-old championship has not been settled despite the decisive victory of the unbeaten Sarazen, Mrs. W. K. Vanderbilt's gelding, over the filly Happ Thoughts, in a special match at Laurel, Maryland last Friday.

Wise Counsellor's impressive triumph over a strong field of juenlies in the Queen City handicap at Latonia Saturday has brought forward this thoroughbred's title claims and it is possible a meeting may be arranged with Sarazen. Max Hirsch, trainer of the eastern champion, is said to be willig to race his charge against Wise Counsellor, while the latter's owner J. S. Ward, also is eager for a test.

Co-Op System Is Commended

(By The Associated Press)

OMAHA, Nebr., Oct. 29.—The agricultural commission of the American Bankers' Association, after two hours of spirited debate this afternoon passed by a unanimous vote a resolution affirming its faith in "orderly marketing of crops and in the efficacy of the co-operative marketing idea" with the provision that organizations employing this idea be conducted on sound economic principles.

Opponents of the co-operative marketing, led by R. D. Sneath, of Tiffin, Ohio, member of the commission for the fourth federal reserve district, cast their votes for the resolution with the statement that it "neither indorsed nor condemned the practical principle of co-operative marketing" after Mr. Sneath's plea that the commission go on record against the co-operative plan failed to find support.

Most of the supporters of co-operative marketing were from Southrn states and pictured its success in the marketing of cotton, rice and other Southern crops.

Mr. Sneath answered that he was "absolutely opposed" to co-operative marketing and declared that "thirty-three per cent of the business men of the United States are middle men," we cannot get a long without them.

"You can't market grain on the co-operative principle," he asserted. "It takes experienced men to handle grain. From fifty to a hundred elevators in my part of the country have been 'run out' by farmers' co-operatives that have failed or will fail because their executives are not business men."

GEORGE UHLE AS PREMIER HURLER

(By The Associated Press.)

CLEVELAND, O., Oct. 29.—George Uhle, Cleveland-American League pitching ace, not only won more games and more innings than any other pitcher in the league. He appeared in the box for the Indians no less than fifty times. Eight times the game was won or lost by some other pitcher. Of the other 42 games, 26 went to Uhle's credit as victories and 16 were charged to him as defeats.

All told Uhle pitched 359 1-3 innings during which his opponents made 372 safe hits. He gave 39 bases on balls and struck out 109 batters. He made two wild pitches and hit seven batters. By winning 26 of 42 games, his percentage of victories is .619.

Hoppe's Victory Not Impressive

(By The Associated Press.)

NE WYORK, Oct. 30.—While William Hoppe, the defending champion stepped out in front of his last night's victory over Erich Hagenlacher, of Germanl, in the first match of the world's 18.2 balke line billiard championship tournament, his victory was not impressive and his followers will watch his next appearance with nervousness.

Hoppe won from Hagenlacher, 500 to 424, but it took him 26 innings to do it, the match requiring three hours and 45 minutes to play and taking a place as one of the slowest championship games on record.

Two close matches are expected today when Walker Cochran, United States, meets Roger Conti, the French star, in the afternoon and Jake Schaefer, former titleholder, and Edouard Horemans, of Belgium, come together in the night match.

A clean cut victory for Schaefer probably would make him favorite over Hoppe, in view of the latter's play last night. Hoppe lost the title to Schaefer two years ago, regained it last November and successfully defended it against him last March.

Hoppe did not play in his usual form last night. He had high runs of 106 and 101. Hagenlacher was brilliant in spots but failed on several occasions when victory was within reach. His high runs were 121 and 91.

Wrestle For Two Hours and Half; Match Is Draw

(By The Associated Press)

NEW YORK, Oct. 30.—Wladek Zbyszko, Polish wrestler, and Marin Plestina, of Chicago, started wrestling in a local armory at 10 o'clock last night and continued until 12:30 a. m., but neither was able to down the other and their bout was declared a draw.

Both men were on their feet when officials of the State Athletic Commission called a halt. Each had flirted with defeat a couple of times the night.

Plestina was the stronger man, but his strength was nullified by Zbyszko's science and toward the close the Pole was doing most of the fighting. Twice during the final thirty minutes it looked as though Plestina was due for a fall when Zbyszko clamped a pair of toe holds on him. The first two hours of the match saw Plestina doing his best work on the aggresive, tossing the Pole around at will. He seemed to tire about midnight.

SPIT BALL PASSES

CHICAGO, Oct. 30.— The day of the spitball pitcher is fast pasing. In the American League "Red" Faber and Stanley Coveleskie, two of the stars, are beginning to show the wear and tear of the spitball. A sore arm kept Coveleskie out of the game for the last six weeks of the season and cost Cleveland second place. Faber was also ailing during the closing month, yet he came through with a well-pitched game in the Chicago series, beating the Cubs.

Donoghue, Jockey, and Jarvis Get Warm Welcome

(By The Associated Press)

SOUTHAMPTON, Eng., Oct. 30.—Steve Donoghue, who rode Papyrus in the international race at Belmont Park and Basil Jarvis, trainer of the thoroughbred, were warmly welcomed upon arriving last evening aboard the Aquitania. Handshakers and photographers kept the mbusy for a half hour.

Papyrus had no share in the greeting, inasmuch as it was decided not to bring him ashore until morning but those who asked for him were told that the racer had withstood the voyage well and was in splendid condition. Papyrus will return to New Market today.

Donoghue and Jarvis had pleasant things to say about their reception in America. They praised Zev as a fine horse and said they had nothing to complain of except the weather.

"It was the track that beat us," said Donoghue. "Until the terrible downfall the night before the race, we had a good chance of winning but the rain changed everything. However, on the day's conditions we were beaten by a better horse."

Middle-Aged Golf Players Scoff At Doctor's Warning

(By The Associated Press.)

CLEVELAND, O. Oct., 30.— The warning of London physicians that persons 50 years old or more are endangering their lives by playing golf is scoffed at by Cleveland's "Indian Scouts" foursome, believed to be one of the oldest active quartets in the world, who may be seen regularly on the golf links here. Their combined age is 227 years. None of them started playing golf until he was past the half century mark.

The foursome is composed of Chas. W. Burrows, 74; G. T. McIntosh, 75; J. W. S. Webb, 69, and A. W. Neale 59. All are prominent business men here and may be seen on the links "every Saturday and a couple or three times a week," as one of them put it.

When they are "on their game" the foursome play in the low eighties or nineties. They have been playing together for about 12 years.

'I don't know of any pastime more aplesant, more healthful and more invigorating for a man between the ages of 60 and 80," Mr. Burrows said. "Of course a man who allows his muscles to become soft and flabby from lack of exercise, smoking, overeating and drinking and then goes out on the course and overtaxes his strength is in danger, but moderate golf means health for a man past 50 who keeps himself in condition.

"Walking around the course by yourself or even with three friends would be too monotonous. Playing golf, you exert yourself for an instant with a stroke drive and then you rest while the others tee off. If you get tired you can sit down and rest, and you're resting in the open air.

"Golf holds your interest. You're continually trying to better your game. You forget the poor shots and try to remember some of the good ones. The four of us play about the same game, but we're continually trying to beat each other, and that's where a lot of the fun comes in.

"Men of our age can't play tennis or baseball because these games are too strenuous. We're satisfied with golf, despite the English doctors warning, and I guess we'll stick to it.

Quiz Sinclair Regarding Lease

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Oct. 29.—Harry F. Sinclair, whose lease of the Teapot Dome naval oil reserve led to one of the bitterest controversies of the last Congress, was quizzed about the leasing negotiations and his relations and his relations with government officials generally when he appeared as a witness today in the industry being conducted by the Senate public lands committee.

In large part the testimony of the oil magnate was a repetition of the story he told last spring to the Lafollette oil investigating committee. He explained the motives that led him to sign the Teapot Dome lease, the conditions in the oil industry at the time ,and the present status of the property. Under questioning he also touched briefly on his personal association with Albert F. Fall, who, as secretary of the interior signed the lease.

VIRGINIA'S BONDED INDEBTEDNESS PLUS INTEREST, A HUNDRED AND THIRTY- TWO MILLION DOLLARS, IF ROAD BOND ISSUE PREVAILS

(Lynchburg News)

To the Virginia taxpayer, this question.

If the home in which you live is at the present time heavily mortgaged, would you or would you not take that fact into consideration, in the event that you were confronted with the proposition to place a second mortgage upon it? Of course you would. But if this is obviously true Should it not also be obviously true that inasmuch as Virginia is now carrying a heavy mortgage in the nature of bonded indebtedness the taxpayers of the commonwealth should take that mortgage into consideration when confronted with the proposition to place another mortgage upon Virginia.

There be those who appear to grow resentful when this view is suggested —who seem to think that any mention of the present Virginia debt is irrelevant to the issue involving the creation of another debt. But it is plainly wise on the part of a state as well as on the part of an individual, to consider liabilities already incurred in connection with a proposal to create other and additional liabilities. The voters of Virginia certainly should keep this fact in mind, so as to be better able to adjust their attitude towards the bond issue upon fundamental bed rock principles of safety, economy and sane progress. In this connection, therefore, be these things considered:

If at the November election, the people of Virginia authorize a $50,000,000 bond issue, they will become responsible for a condition which will mean a total state indebtedness, including interest, of ONE HUNDRED AND THIRTY-TWO MILLION DOLLARS. Keep those figures in mind They are, absolutely reliable: $132,000,000.

According to the bond leaders, the interest that will accrue upon the proposed $50,000,000 bond issue will amount approximately to $31,000,000.

According to Second Auditor Rosewell Page the present debt of Virginia is $21,641,107 45.

According to Second Auditor Rosewell Page, the amount of interest on that debt of $21,641,107.45, that will have to be paid before its retirement, will be $30,055,887.47

Therefore Virginia's bonded and interest obligation of $50,000,000 if road bonds are issued as proposed will embrace the following items:

Present bonded debt	$ 21,647,107 45
Interest on present bonded debt	30,055,887.47
Proposed road bond issue	50,000,000.00
Interest on proposed road bond issue	31,000,000.00
Total	$132,702,994.92

There you are, men and women of Virginia! A burden of more than $61,000,000 of interest charges on a total debt of $71,000,000 will rest upon the people of Virginia if the bond cause prevails in the referendum to be voted upon at the November election. Are you prepared by your ballots to aid in creating that condition?

If not, Vote Against the Bond Issue.

Zangwill Striving For Amtiy In Life Of Jews, He Says

(By The Associated Press)

NEW YORK, Oct. 29.—Israel Zangwill, noted British author, at a dinner given in his honor by The Judeans last night, asserted that he was striving only for amity in Jewish life and was willing to meet all Jewish leaders in an effort to get it

Mr. Zangwill said he stood for unity and progress of all Jews of all the world. He was ready, he added, to assist the Jewish Palestine Zionist Society by lecturing on any controversial subject for the benefit of that organization.

The Jewish leader of Great Britain whose recent address before the American Jewish Congress, declaring political zionism dead, was widely criticised, declared he had got into a fight he did not expect and was going to see it through.

Mr. Zangwill's reply to his critics came on the heels of a scathing attack by Samuel Untermyer, president of the Palestine Roundation fund, in a letter sent to Nathan Straus, honorary president of the American Jewish Congress, declaring that the views of the British writer on the zionism, "reckless, irresponsible and destructive"

Describing Mr Zangwill as a "prince of intellectual jugglers," Mr. Untermyer said his policies were "true to a the traditions of operabouffe statesmanship" and his dealings with the Arabs in Palestine were characterized by "Puerile Psuedo-Artfulness." He denied that Zangwill was a Jewish leader, asserting he has "no followers and no organization."

By CASUAL STROLER

NEW YORK, Oct. 30.— A kiss in this city, is worth ten times as much as a blow. At least that is what the courts in Brooklyn decided last week A jury awarded one woman $5,000 for a little kiss implanted on her cheek by a neighbor.

A judge made a man put up a $500 bond to be forfeited if he beats his again.

Another change in the cost of living here: A girl who tried to smoke a cigaret on a Staten Island ferry boat had to pay a $5 fine. Her escort who smoked to keep her company, had to pay $10.

Brooklyn bridge, the Woolworth building, and City Hall have been sold time and again to gullible buyers. But here's a new one: An enterprising New Yorker sold the city caviar concession for $100. His sucker was a French Canadian who thought he got a good thing, for the Russian delicacy is popular here. But somehow others in the business would not quit. As a result the out-of-towner is out $100 and the intowner is in jail.

Due to the unprecedented drought in the tropics. "Yes, We Have No Bananas" has become a real lament. So severe has the shortage become that the competition among local banana dealers is becoming keener every day. ast week a dealer offered a bunch for sale to two retailers. They were so desirous of buying that a quarrel began which ended with both men and the bunch of bananas rolling in the gutter.

FIRE IN LITTLE VALLEY ESTIMATED AT $100,000

(By The Associated Press)

LITTLE VALLEY, N. Y., Oct. 29— Five business buildings in the heart of Little Valley's business section were destroyed today by a fire which for a time threatened the city.

All of the burned buildings were of frame construction Estimates of the damage ranged from $75,000 to $100,000

MUSIC IS ONLY WEAK SPOT IN THE NEW FOLLIES

By JAMES W. DEAN

NEW YORK, Oct. 29.— Herewith your correspondent's report on Flo Ziegfeld's newest Follies:

One outstanding personality, Fanne Brice. The now show has no one of equal caliber. No Will Rogers, nor no Gilda Gray, nor no Ann Pennington.

Nudity: Chorus girls wear more clothes than for several years. Their costumes are very snappy. In a Ben Ali Hagrin tableau one girl is completely nude.

Beauty: Settings are less lavish than in previous productions, but mass effects with the entire cast in brilliant colors more than offset the simpler setting One ballet scene in which all are dressed in white is just about the most beautiful spectacle the stage has held this season.

Dancing: Empire Girls dance together with the precision of a machine. They are just about the most perfect team dancers since the original Tiller girls from ondon showed us how. Hilda Ferguson is poor substitute for Gilda Gray as a muscle dancer. Harland Dixon is only ordinary in his eccentric dances. The 'Broadway Indians" chorus dance led by Brooke Johns is very effective.

Music: Here is the weak spot of the new Follies The only catchy tune is "Shake Your Feet," by Brooke Johns, held over from the previous Follies. Paul Whiteman's band, led by himself, furnishes just about the worst music this writer ever heard It was my impression when I first heard Whiteman's band that he was slightly overrated. It is now my impression that he is greatly overrated. The music he plays for phonograph records is much better than that which he plays for programs, probably because he keeps his brasses subdued.

Molnar's second play to be produced here this season, "The Swan," promises to be much more successful than his first, "Launzi." "The Swan" is realistic and ugly. Yet it seems to me that the story of 'Launzi" has depth and breadth and meaning and would prove successful under any method of stage treatment.

"The Swan" in its main theme doesn't get far from what has been done before in the way of happy romances, but it has a lightness of line and twist of humor that puts it in the van of recent plays Eva LeGallienne in the role of a princess is as delightful a performer as she was in "Liliom"

FANNIE BRICE

"Nobody's business' has little to recommend it as farce except what is imparted by its lines. A farce must be evolved from a very simple situation and in "Nobody's Business" the plot is complicated. Francine Larrimore doesn't become very enthusiastic over her part. That only adds to the dullness of the evening.

* * *

Two of the best comedies of the year have been Mr. Shakespeare's "Twelfth Night" and "Taming of the Shrew" as presented by Sothern and Marlowe. Patronage has not indicated that. The reason for that is that few people see Shakespeare for entertainment. They go to any Shakspare play in search of knowledge, more's the pity.

DOLLAR GOES UP WHILE MAN EATS

(By The Associated Press)

BERLIN, Oct. 29.—"Give me all the food an American dollar will buy" was the order of a prosperous looking stranger in one of the lesser restaurants of Berlin. Such lavish orders are unusual in these days of bad exchange, but the waiter recovered from his astonishment and began to serve the guest. Soup, several meat dishes, fruit and coffee were served. While the guest was smoking his cigar the waiter brought another plate of soup, and later another meat dish.

"What does this mean," asked the astonished and already satiated guest.

"The dollar has gone up again," said the waiter.

Miners Observe Anniversary Of End Of 1900 Strike

HAZELTON, Pa., Oct. 29.—Anthracite miners were idle today in observance of Mitchell Day, so-called in honor of the successful termination of the hard coal strike of 1900 under the leadership of the late John Mitchell, then international president of the United Mine Workers.

One of the chief features of the day was to have been the dedication of a monument in Scranton in honor of Mitchell, but the ceremonies have been postponed, owing to the inability of contractors to finish the work in time. It is expected the exercises will be held April 1, next, the anniversary of the grantin gof the eight hour day.

Is Every Day a Backache Day?

Lame and achy in the morning? Tortured with backache all day long? No wonder you feel worn out and discouraged! But have you given any thought to your kidneys? Weak kidneys cause just such troubles; and you are likely to have headaches, too, with dizziness, stabbing pains, and bladder irregularities. Don't risk neglect! Use Doan's Kidney Pills. Doans have helped thousands. They should help you. Ask Your neighbor!

HERE'S A N. DANVILLE CASE:

Mrs. R. B. Rodenhiser, 530 N. Main St., North Danville, says: "I had severe pains across my back and if I stooped, I could hardly straighten, the pain was so severe. Mornings I had a sore and stiff feeling and I was tired and languid all the time. Doan's Kidney Pills were recommended and after I used them. I got relief."

"THE MONSTER."

Makes Women Scream Play Crowded With Shocks, Laughter and Trick Scenery.

(Douglas Gordon, in Times Dispatch)

"Talk about thrills and shocks! Why, this thing is one uninterrupted attack upon the nervous system, which is saved from continuous horror only by the merciful recesses provided by innumerable laughs. Last night, long before the silence-proof covering of the aisles had ceased reverberating to the footsteps of the late-comers, the house was shuddering long before the first curtain fell, women were squealing long before the final curtain was rung down, they were half-way scream, and—be it admitted—several men had shouted warning to those on the stage apparently about to die.

"Crane Wilbur, a regular actor but much more widely known as a movie actor, both wrote and staged the piece.

"The settings of all three scenes are heavy, almost massive. This effect of solidity is heightened by the Egyptian suggestion of the scenery; all, or nearly all, the doors, fireplaces and openings are narrower at the top than at the bottom. Indeed, the stuff must be solid—or "The Monster" would lose much of its electric quality. Heavy doors swing open; solid and high window shutters fall to convert rooms into vaults; couches sink through the floors; iron bars almost a prison make, and—horror's crown of horror! —an apparently 'practical' chair is connected with a switchboard and fitted with such equipment as is found only in certain rooms in certain penitentiaries.

"Amid such settings, on a dark and stormy evening, a tramp and a young girl and a young man find themselves detained for the night. After breathless delays, punctuated by the appearance, one by one, of the inmates of this fearful house—a doctor, a huge dumb negro and a man without a face—the real terrors of the night descend upon them and pile themselves upon them in a sort of quivering mass of dread. Ugh! But for Mr. Wilbur's hobo and his comedy, the thing would be intolerable. Yet, after each act is ended, and the Monster, his victims and the trick scenery are hidden from view, the audience laughs at itself and its fears of a few moments before. In a word, the play does not leave anything resembling the impression left by—well, 'ghosts,' or any of the other studies of mental horror. In another word, it's a mystery play crowded with artificial thrills, many of which are created by smoothly working examples of stage carpenter's art. Yet, again, there is a series of English stories dealing with a surgeon who would heal his own diseased brain by experimenting—that'll do; it would be unfair to others looking for thrills."

NEW YORK COTTON.

(By The Associated Press)

NEW YORK, Oct. 30.—The cotton market was rather irregular and unsettled early today. The opening was 5 to 10 points lower in response to rather disappointing cables but prices soon stiffened up on covering and rebuying which seemed to be inspired by unfavorable weather reports from the south and prospects for another cold wave. January sold up from 30.20 to 30.32 but the bulge met scattering liquidation and prices slipped back a few points during the early trading. Much of the business was supposed to represent evening up of accounts in preparation for the government's crop report on Friday. Private cables said reactions from the opening advance in Liverpool were due to profit taking because of a less active spot demand.

MORNING STOCK LETTER

Thomson & McKinnon

NEW YORK, Oct. 30.—Some corporate statements are coming along and will probably prove a shock to those who have been preaching depression. The trouble with a good many of us is that we have been fearfully spoiled by war profits. It is time to get down to earth and get away from those imposible figures. Of course, there are some companies that lose money just like some individuals who are unfortunate or very poor managers but you don't have to buy an interest in those companies There are hundreds listed on the stock exchange that are ably managed and, year in an dyear out, do very well. The next question is, when is it time to acquire an interest in them? Well, one of things to remember is that bull markets begin when there are many complaints in business and prices are low, just as they come to an end when every one is talking boom and prices are high. Of course if you are looking for the little turns in the market, that's quite another matter.

MORNING GRAIN LETTER

Thomson & McKinnon

CHICAGO, Oct. 30.— The wheat market is without trend and is likely to continue so for sometime. It will take definite action in governmental circles to get the market out of its present rut. Corn is under the influence of rather free and early movement of the new crop. The futures, to us, appear to have been sold rather indiscriminately and we look for a sharp rally before long.

MORNING COTTON LETTER

Thomson & McKinnon

NEW YORK, Oct., 30. —Yesterday's decline was caused by longs taking profits, some short selling by wire houses on reports that the basis was easier and also on the poor showing of Liverpool. The new official forecast may prove to be less than 10,500,000 bales or even 10,250,000 bales. Should this anticipation be justified there can be little doubt that the price of cotton will quickly rise to levels very much higher than any that have as yet been attained.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON.

(By The Associated Press)

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 30.—A break in the Liverpool market caused lower prices on the opening trade in cotton here today but after declines of one to 12 points new buying was encountered based on rain and cold weather in the western belt and at the end of the first half hour of business prices were 6 to 14 points higher than the final sales of yesterday. December fell of to 30.26 and reacted to 30.48.

Great Britain Is Shocked By Death Of Former Premier

in the world war, a sorrow from which Mr. Bonar Law never recovered.

When the Canadian Scotsman—Mr. Bonar Law was born in New Brunswick, Canada, on September 16, 1858—accepted his high office a year ago, his friends well knew that his health was precarious. Outside of that circle it was not known only that he contracted a throat complaint which prevented him from speaking.

Mr. Bonar Law was aware of his own condition and promised the Unionist party, when he accepted its mandate, that he would resign if he found his strength unequal to his work. He gave his place to Stanley Baldwin, his chancellor of the exchequer, almost before his new government was fairly organized, retiring to the country t osafeguard his failing strength.

No official statement as to the nature of Mr. Bonar Law's illness was ever made out the public drew an inference from the fact that Dr. Thomas Horder, who was attending him when he resigned and who has since been his physician, is one of the foremost cancer specialists.

During the interval spent in the country since his retirement from the prime ministership, Mr. Bonar Law has been able to take outdoor walks and also motored considerably. The reports of these activities, which seemed to indicate that he was holding his own, had not prepared the public for the news of his comparatively rapid decline.

Andrew Bonar Law, one of the most powerful figures in political Europe preceding, during and immediately following the World War, became Prime Minister of England Oct. 23, 1922, upon the resignation of David Lloyd George—last of the famous war premiers and of the "Big Four" at Versailles to step down from office.

Bonar Law had distinguished himself five years before as the man who refused a king's offer to make him Prime Minister. As leader of the Conservatives, the largest single party in the House of Commons, he was summoned by King George to form a cabinet late in 1916, after Lloyd George, then Minister of Munitions, had forced an issue with Premier Asquith and brought about the latter's resignation. The political colleagues of Asquith, however, declined to promise adhesion, and believing that a coalition government was essential for the successful prosecution of the war, Bonar Law refused the honor. Lloyd George and his famous war cabinet was the result.

Often called the "Roosevelt of England" because of his tremendous following from all parties and all walks of life, Bonar Law became Chancellor of the Exchequer under the new premier and fought side by side with the "Little Welsh Giant" until the Spring of 1921, when he was forced to retire because of ill health.

Although always a champion of the man he had virtually made premier, Bonar Law remained with his party when the Conservatives, in 1922, met and decided to withhold support from the coalition government, which, it was felt, had out-lived the emergency for which it was created. Despite his failing health, he was considered the logical successor to Lloyd George and when the king again invited him to form a ministry, he found no words behind which to couch a refusal.

He managed to conduct the affairs of his strenuous office for seven months before it became publicly known that his health again had broken down. Late in May, 1923, it was announced that the premier was imminent. A few wdays later his formal resignation was filed with the king and Stanley Baldwin, Chancellor of the Exchequer, was named to succeed him.

In contrast to the epochal period during the war, the Armistice and the era of reconstruction subsequent to the ending of hostilities, the government of Bonar Law was eclipsed in importance, although it dealt with several problems of great domestic and international magnitude. Among these was the Irish question, the French invasion of the Ruhr Valley, which placed England in an extremely delicate position; the funding of the American debt, and the difficulties with Soviet Russia over the treatment of British subjects in the Near East.

A statesman with few political enemies, the career of Bonar Law was singular. He was 42 years of age before he entered politics. A successful Glasgow iron merchant who had been born and educated in Canada, his rise to eminence in the British Parliament began with his election in 1900 as a Unionist from the Blackfriars Division of Glasgow. Strong for tariff reform, he soon became noted for his clear reasoning on that subject, and as a result was made Parliamentary Secretary of the Board of Trade. Later he successively became leader of the Unionist, or Opposition party in the House of Commons, Secretary of State for the Colonies, Chancellor of the Exchequer, Lord of the Privy Seal, and finally premier.

Primarily a business man, he employed the tactics of business rather than the strategy of politics in dealing with national problems. With the advent of Lloyd George as premier, he became the Welshman's Jonathan and was referred to as his "Main Friday." As a member of the war cabinet, chancellor, and as the coalition government's leader in the House of Commons, he enjoyed the fullest confidence of his famous chief.

He interpreted administration measures, parried thrusts against the government and answered interpellations from the floor. A lithe, slim figure of a man, scarcely five feet in height, with a bristling mustache, bright, active eyes, and a determined set to his mouth and chin, he was a typical hard-headed Scotch business man. In addition, he was something of an orator, quick of thought and speech, using short, sharp sentences that often smacked of that bitter, cutting sarcasm for which he was famous.

It was his persistency that brought about the evacuation of Gallipoli, of ill-starred Dardanelles campaign fame and the removal of more than 100,000 surviving British soldiers from an untenable position.

His services as government leader in the House of Commons, a more difficult and thankless position than that of the leader of the opposition, placed Bonar Law high among his illustrious predecessors, Disraeli, Gladstone, Campbell-Bannerman and A. J. Balfour.

New of his retirement due to ill health in the Spring of 1921, came as a shock to his colleagues and tributes to his work were paid even by former bitter opponents. Former Premier Asquith said: "I have for many years been engaged in giving and taking blows from Mr. Bonar Law but they never left any rancor behind them." Lloyd George, in reading the retiring Chancellor's letter of resignation, repeatedly choked back sobs and expressed the hope that his friend might return to his duties after a prolonged rest. Finally the premier, who had been so courageous and powerful in the conduct of the war, sank back into his seat with a gesture indicating his inability to continue.

Bonar Law's breakdown dated from shortly before the Paris Peace Conference of 1919 which he attended as one of the British delegates.

The disposition of Bonar Law to take the most positive stand on grave public questions caused him some embarrassment before his first retirement. He was an uncomprmising foe to the Irish republican movement, and when Lord Mayor MacSwiney of Cork lay dying, a hunger striker in Brixton prison, James Henry Thomas, president of the Trades Union Congress, representing 6,500,000 British workers, blamed Bonar Law as "the one man more than any other who has justified in Ulster and in Parliament the spirit of rebellion." In a speech in Edinburgh the chancellor prophesied that the government would fail unless it was "firm" in dealing with Sinn Fein.

The desire of Lloyd George and nBoar Law to resume trade relations with Russia through the Soviet government also met with determined resistance from Earl Curzon, the foreign Secretary, Winston Churchill, then Secretary for War, and Austin Chamberlain, chancellor of the exchequer. The difficulty of the situation was made greater by the attitude of France and America, where there was much opposition to the British plan.

Bonar Law was born in New Brunswick, Canada, September 16, 1858 the son of the Rev. James Law, M. A., of New Brunswick. In early youth he was taken to Glasgow where he atended high school and finally became bookkeeper for an iron firm. Later he was made a member of the concern and when he retired from business to enter politics was one of the biggest iron merchants of Scotland. Golf and chess were his favorite recreations.

Nine years before his election to Parliament he married Miss Annie Pitcairn Robley of Glasgow who died in 1909. Four children were born to them, two sons and two daughters. One daughter, Isabelle, became the bride of Sir General Frederick Sykes in London in 1920. Two sons, Anthony and Lieutenant C. T. Bonar Law were lost in the war.

HART POLO STAR

LOWELL, Mass., Oct 29—Bob Hart, National League umpire, is one of the greatest roller polo players in the country. For years Hart has been to baseball, the game's been to the polo world what Ruth has been to baseball, the game's greatest hitter. Every year finds Hart leading the goal getters or mighty close to the top. Age is beginning to slow up his polo play, and the arbitrator is undecided as to whether or not he will go out this year.

SPRING SERVICE

Does Your Car Ride Hard?

Don't discard it until you investigate these springs. Your springs probably squeak and groan because they are rusted, set or broken. Nearly all broken springs are rusted springs. Stanley self-lubricating Springs never rust and seldom break. They are especially tough and resilent, and heat-treated with the greatest skill, the result of 28 years' experience in the business.
